NEW MOVE IN WAR ON LOAN EVIL

The Committee on Banks and Banking to-day stands instructed by unanimous vote of the State Senate to bring in a bill to curb the loan sharks, not later than Thursday of this week.

Senator George Holden Tinkham, chairman of the Senate committee, in submitting his statement to that body, made it clear that the House chairman would be ready to report to the Legislature on Thursday, at the latest. Drastic action to prevent any further persecution of the poor by the merciless money-lenders is said to be sure to follow.

The startling expose of the usurious practises of the loan sharks of Boston in the Sunday AMERICAN, in which it was proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that William A. Taylor of South Boston had been hounded to death after effecting a $5 loan from these leeches, has awakened the entire State to the necessity of blotting out this evil.

By open evasions of the small-loan laws of the State some of these money lenders have been collecting from 200 to 300 per cent. profit on the loans made to the needy poor of Boston. In one instance, a man who had borrowed $400 was found to have paid back $4,000, and he still owed $500. Another man had paid $2,133 on a loan of $15, made twenty-one years ago, and he owed the original $15 just borrowed.

From additional testimony of the rapacity of the small-loan brokers, voluntarily given to the AMERICAN by some of the most prominent lawyers in the city, it appears that the most valued, if unwilling, allies of these men have been the large employers of labor, who accept without question wage assignments and attachments levied on workmen's wages.

The AMERICAN has refused to accept such assignments or attachments on the mere say-so of the loan brokers for several years. Its policy always is called in to determine whether or not a man's wages have been assigned according to the small-loan laws of the State. The same rule is observed when a wage attachment is levied on a man's wages, for debt.

If it is found that the man who made the assignment is married, and his wife's consent was not obtained previously, the person filing the assignment is promptly notified that the management of the AMERICAN will not honor it. Or, if an attachment is levied to collect a bill for non-necessities, the workman is given $20, which the law says is exempt from attachment, and $10, if it is for necessities.

One of the most eminent lawyers in the city states that if this rule were adopted by every large employer of labor in the Commonwealth, the loan-shark would be compelled to go out of business. It is the fear of losing his position that causes the borrower to become a helpless victim of the money lender.

Good lawyers also hold that it would be safe, even under the present law, for any man dealing with a licensed money lender

TRYING TO KEEP SHERMAN ON TICKET

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Rumors were in circulation at the White House to-day following visits by several senators and Vice-President Sherman that the political powers now controlling the Republican party have definitely decided to bring about Sherman's renomination for the Vice-Presidency.

POLICEMAN SHOT DEAD BY BANDITS

PROVIDENCE, June 27.—Charles A. Pollette, who was shot and dangerously wounded by a bandit, who afterwards shot and killed Patrolman Walter S. McQuarry of Warwick, early to-day, told the story of the shooting to the doctors of the Rhode Island Hospital.

From the facts that have been gathered by Chief of Police Andrews of Warwick, they believe that the bandit was an employe of an East Greenwich factory, goods from which were found in the bag dropped by the man.

The employes of the bleachery at East Greenwich were closely scrutinized as they went to work to-day to see if there was anyone missing who answered to the description of the bandit or who acted as though he had passed through such a thrilling tragedy as the one that took place in the early morning hours.

Story Told By Pollette.

This is the story told by Pollette, who was a friend of the dead policeman:

"I was on the street of Apponaug, which is in East Greenwich, about 1:30 a. m. I knew Policeman McQuarry well and walked along the street with him. We were a short distance from the Apponaug Hotel when McQuarry saw a man coming toward us. It was so dark that we could not make out clearly the figure of the man, but we could see that he carried a white bag on his shoulders.

"'What have you got there?' sang out McQuarry.

"'Have you been robbing a clothesline?'

"The man was whistling. He kept on at it and did not make any reply to McQuarry.

"He wore a slouch hat and was of medium build. I noticed particularly that his features were markedly sharp.

"'What have you got there?' asked McQuarry a second time.

"The man kept on whistling and did not speak. Then McQuarry said to me: 'You grab one of his arms and I'll take the other one.'

Drops Bag and Shoots.

"The man dropped the bag and shot me in the face. By that time I had hold of one of his arms. McQuarry ran to my assistance. I was dazed, but did not fall. The man shot McQuarry twice. The policeman fell and did not move.

"I also dropped to the ground. The man made a dash for a clock yard. That's about all I can tell about it. I might be able to identify the man if I saw him."

The pistol the bandit used and the hat he wore were picked up in the rear of the yard through which he disappeared.

Pollette is badly shot. The bullet hit him in the face to the left of the nose. The doctors say it has been able to find the bullet. They think that possibly it dropped into the man's throat and that he spit it out. If that is the case and the bullet

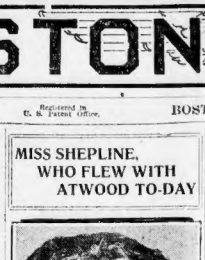
MISS SHEPLINE, WHO FLEW WITH ATWOOD TO-DAY



MISS BERTHA SHEPLINE

ATWOOD TAKES GIRL PASSENGER

Miss Bertha M. Sheplin of No. 22 Neponset avenue, Hyde Park, made her first flight to-day, being taken up as a passenger by Aviator Harry L. Atwood, in his Burgess-Wright machine from the Harvard aviation field at Squantum. Miss Sheplin was carried over a distance of ten miles, at an average height of 200 feet. The machine was over the water most of the twelve minutes the young woman was in the air. When she alighted she said she had the finest trip of her life.

Atwood carried up the whistles and bottle weighting more than a pigmy storm, which didn't let even the little fishes go "asleep in the deep."

All His Friends There.

All the Mayor's friends were on hand. Of course, all the "pols" were there. Everybody that was anybody heard the come-all-ye that assembled them at the pier, and a few minutes later listened to the fond fare-ye-wells that the Mayor candled forth from the deck.

Through and through it was a handsome tribute. Certainly, fewer handsomer send-offs have ever been given to a European tourist out of Boston.

With the Mayor went his two daughters, Misses Rose and Agnes Fitzgerald. Among the last to leave the Mayor's party on the pier were Mrs. Fitzgerald, and three sons, Tom, John F., Jr., and five-year-old Fred.

The floral gifts were the biggest the waterfront has ever seen. From the Democratic State Committee came a beautiful send of the city worked in flowers. From the city committee came a giant basket of roses, orchids and lilies. Roses were the present of the Mayor's office staff. Orchids came from the school teachers. About two score other handsome floral designs came from the Board of Assessors. Misses Rose and Agnes Fitzgerald also received an abundance of bouquets.

DEPOSITIONS FOR EVANS WILL CASE

The depositions which Mrs. Maria A. Evans, widow of Robert D. Evans, asked the Supreme Court to be allowed to take for the purpose of perpetuating testimony for use after her death, have been completed by the commission appointed for that object. Judge Morton in the Supreme Court ordered the depositions filed in the Registry of Deeds. Mr. Evans was President Taft's landlord two years ago. He was thrown from his horse and died. The purpose of the depositions is to determine after Mrs. Evans's death, who is entitled to the property, as Mr. Evans made a provision in his will that one-half of his property was to go to his own heirs following Mrs. Evans's death. An aunt of Mr. Evans has died since the taking of the depositions began.

MAYOR IS OFF FOR EUROPE

Mayor Fitzgerald is leaving a new song to-day. He has dcorted "Sweet Adeline" and even giving us thrilling a few bars from "My Hero." He has taken up with a new vocal affinity—and it begins:

"Sailing, sailing, over the bounding main."

But the first tryout the Mayor gave his new musical love didn't end with this line. Passengers on the Franconia—yes, the Mayor got away on the giant Cunarder at 10 o'clock to-day on his trip to join the Chamber of Commerce tourists in Europe—passengers on the Franconia took up the refrain. So did the cheering throngs that filled four smaller craft that accompanied the big liner down the harbor. They were yelling lustily for "Fitz" and "Honey John," bidding him a fond farewell.

Crowds Finish Refrain.

So numerous and loud were the plaudits he received, the Mayor, who is accompanied on the voyage by his two daughters, had to come to the railing and wave his acknowledgments. It was then that the enthusiastic crowds polished his song for him:

"When Johnny comes home again."

That's just what they sung. And they promised that when the Mayor does return they will give him a homecoming that will put the sendoff he got to-day utterly in the shady background.

The Mayor made his getaway amid a big noise. The waterfront never heard the like of it before. Then, there was no sounding of cannon. But the sounds that a few thousands of lusty throats emitted, that a score of sirens and other whistles let loose

All His Friends There.

All the Mayor's friends were on hand. Of course, all the "pols" were there. Everybody that was anybody heard the come-all-ye that assembled them at the pier, and a few minutes later listened to the fond fare-ye-wells that the Mayor candled forth from the deck.

HOUSE BEATS REFERENDUM

The initiative and referendum bill was defeated in the House this afternoon on a roll call vote. The bill was up for passage to engrossment. The motion failed by a vote of 125 yeas to 75 nays, which was not the necessary two-thirds vote. A change of nine votes from nay to yea would have carried the measure.

The result of the vote caused the greatest surprise. The reconsideration of the bill may be moved to-morrow.

HARVARD MEN IN REUNIONS

The Country Club at Brookline was the scene of four Harvard class reunions to-day. Old "grads" romped over fields, played baseball, tennis and golf. Distinguished persons representing nearly every walk of life attended. The reception of all the classes were informal. The class of 1891 were large Boston sombrero with blue canes, those represented with a large band around the hat.

With the class of 1881 were ex-Governor Curtis Guild, Judge Farnsworth, Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, Judge L. M. Clarke, Dr. E. B. Lane, former School House Commissioner R. C. Sturgis, William H. Coolidge, attorney for the Boston & Maine, and George Burnett of Brookline.

In the class of 1896 crowd were Alexander Ross of New Hampshire, John L. O'Brien, Assistant U. S. District Attorney of western New York, and ex-Assistant General J. H. Parker. The entire party of 175 came in sixty-five automobiles.

The class of '91 included Frank Hitchcock, Postmaster-General; Nicholas Longworth, John F. Bass, brother of the Governor of New Hampshire; Arthur D. Hill, ex-postmaster of Boston; A. Oliver and I. E. Marside of Seattle, Wash.

"L" GIVES UP LEASE BATTLE

The Boston Elevated Railway Company made a complete surrender of its demand for a 50-year lease of Boston's subways and tunnels to-day. The city's subways will be leased for a limit of twenty-five years only.

The victory follows the AMERICAN'S efforts to prevent the surrender of the city's streets to the Elevated for half a century.

Following conferences this forenoon, the Governor announced that a settlement had been made. Two bills will at once be introduced in the Legislature, embodying the features of the bills offered by Senator George Holden Tinkham.

The bills will make the following provisions:

1. Consolidation of the West End with the Elevated.
2. A dividend of 7 per cent. for the West End stockholders.

Improvements at Once.

3. All the transportation improvements provided for in the present bill—the Hopkinton street subway, the Dorchester tunnel, the extension of the East Boston tunnel to Bowdoin square, the Park street to South Station tunnel—must be carried out at once. Construction of the tunnels and subway is to begin as soon as needed.

In one of the two subscribe bills to be offered by the Elevated and Senator Tinkham, subways and tunnels will be taken over. In the other of the two bills will provide for all the other transportation improvements, at the option of the city, at the contract over the fifty year bill.

One of the bills will be introduced in the Legislature provides that the West End shall be taken over by the Elevated later than October 31 of this year, to consolidate with the Elevated on a 7 per cent. dividend basis. The present lease of the West End to the Elevated does not expire till 1926.

Lease Extends to 1922.

Should the West End stockholders not vote to consolidate before October 31 next, the bill further provides that the lease of the Elevated shall extend to April 1, 1922, and that the matter of a still longer lease and the amount of the dividend shall then be determined by a board of arbitration, whose decision in the matter shall be final.

In the matter of tunnels and subways, the bill provides such leases shall be given the Elevated for a period of twenty-five years. In other words, they will run until 1956.

There is nothing in the bill to prevent the Elevated from applying to the Legislature at any time before the 25-year lease runs out for a further extension before 1956. The city will then consider leasing the tunnels or subways to be built meanwhile.

The result of to-days conference was reached after a session of last night. The features mentioned by Louis D. Brandeis, counsel for the Legislature, and Sunday will be embodied in the two bills to be before the Legislature for enactment.

Foss Holds Conferences.

Governor Foss and not announce his decision to-day until he had two lengthy conferences. The first lasted from 10:30 until 11 o'clock, when the Governor was closeted with Mr. Brandeis, who has been the leader

BILL TO CURB THE LOAN SHARKS UNANIMOUSLY ORDERED BY SENATE

to refuse to pay more than the legal rate of interest. They say that under a recent decision of the Supreme Court (in Richardson vs. Fay) a precedent has been established which makes it impossible for the loan-broker to recover one penny of the principle if he charges more than the legal rate of interest.

This ruling they say, applies with equal force to the non-licensed money lender, and split-loans, fines, reimbursements, investigation charges, renewals, bonus, discount in as interest after the initial fee permitted by law is paid when first obtaining the loan. The list of legal fees fixed by statute law in this instance is as follows:

For loans of $25, or under, $2; of $26 to $50, $3; from $51 to $100, $4; from $101 to $200, $10. No fees are allowed for renewals, and every employer is safe in refusing to accept a wage-assignment if the fees demanded exceed the principal, or that amount actually borrowed plus the legal fee and legal interest.

Pointers for Victims.

The loan-shark victims, also, are advised that they, too, are well within their legal rights if they block the money-lender's game by refusing to pay fines, bonus, renewals, etc. Also, that they may apply to the courts and save even the principal itself if, by split-loans and other sharp practice, their charges have been made to exceed the legal fees allowed by the above list of fees, plus interest.

Prominent among the proposed remedies for the notorious loan-shark evil is that of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, by which $30 of a workingman's wages will be exempted from assignment in case it is for necessaries, and $20 if it is for non-necessities. These exemptions now prevail under the attachment laws of the State.

Still another remedy is that talked of by members of the Legislature, requiring every loan-broker to file at Police Headquarters a daily list of loans made, giving the names and the residences of the borrowers, and the amounts loaned to them, with a provision that the police in turn notify every member of the family by mail or other brokers every twenty-four hours, too.

Loan Clearing House.

The advocates of this measure hold that if there was a filing-house law, similar to but more stringent than that now on the statute books for pawn brokers, self-interest would in time lead the money sharks themselves to refuse to lend money to men too deeply in debt.

It is thought possible that the Committee on Banks and Banking will report a combination measure embracing the good features of both these plans. And there are some who look for a radical anti-usury bill, which would make it a criminal offence to charge more than a stipulated interest on any such loan.

Owing to the startling expose of the Sunday AMERICAN confines to be the leading newspaper in this section among men in all walks of life the State over.

The refusal of the AMERICAN to accept any more small-loan broker advertisements, even though it meant a loss of $25,000 a year, was the beginning of the opening gun in a campaign that will eventually drive every hotel loan-shark out of business.

Councilor Curley's Plan.

Congressman James M. Curley heartily endorsed the campaign which the Boston AMERICAN is waging against the grasping money sharks, and as a remedy for the evil suggested that public-spirited colleges start a fund to be lent to deserving workingmen and others at a fair rate of interest. He offers to contribute $500 of his City Council salary to start the fund.

Speaking on a question of personal privilege at the meeting of the City Council, Councilor Langone-councilor castigated the money lenders. He declared they were a curse to the working people and that any movement to make their business unprofitable should have the endorsement of all thinking men and women.

He said societies formed for the purpose of loaning money to deserving people at a fair rate of interest had had remarkable success in Russia and more recently in Chicago. Such a plan, in his opinion, is the best method of driving many of the loan sharks from business. He says such a society would have no competition, because none of the money lenders could afford or would be satisfied with 6 per cent. interest. Discussing the matter Councilor Curley said:

In this connection I call attention to the loan shark business, an article regarding which appears in the Boston AMERICAN, which says:

"Once trapped it is harder for a victim to escape the clutches of a loan shark than it was for Hugo's hero to run his way from the tentacles of the ferocious devil-fish. Even Boston school teachers have got into their clutches, and after having paid 50 per cent. more than they borrowed they still owe one and one-half times the original loan. One victim, a hard-working young man of South Boston, despairing of ever getting out of the clutches of a concern from which he borrowed $5 killed himself." Victims have paid back from one to a hundred times the amount of the original loan and still were in debt to the original creditor.

Now in that connection I desire to say, with reference to my City Council salary, that I am willing to present to any person who may come in charge of such a fund, $500 of that salary for the creation of a loan comprise in this city to be conducted by paid attaches, or to be conducted in connection with the newspaper, where-by it will be possible to make unprofitable the business of the loan-shark in the city of Boston, and at the same time to be of benefit to the deserve people of Boston.

And I might say, Mr. Chairman, in this connection, that the idea was suggested to me by the reading of this particular article called "The Russian Jew in the United States," and in this particular section it treats of a proposition along similar lines, that is to say, taking advantage or failing to take advantage of the misery or poverty of the people in a community. And it treats of the Russian Czar, Nicholas, which has been in existence since 1892. Its object is to loan money without interest in amounts of from $5 to $50, to be paid off in weekly installments to any deserving individual who can find a sponsor, or in other words, who can find a responsible endorser for his note.

When the society was organized it had a net capital of $50. The society has now a capital of $74,184.22, according to its twelfth annual report, ending December 31, 1910, and it returned over its capital more than four times during the year, loaning $320,740 to 12,113 persons.

Of the total amount loaned 97 per cent was repaid by the borrowers. The value of such a society in the direction of preventative charity can hardly be estimated. In the language of one of the speakers at an annual meeting the "Bemliath Chassedim" may be likened to a dispensary and the United Hebrew charities to a hospital. In the former mild and not yet requiring heroic surgical or medical interference, may receive attention. Here, however, the ailments ends. The dispensary is intended essentially for the poor man who has no other means of receiving medical assistance, and there are other societies here referred to.

Now then, Mr. Chairman, the same form of society was started in Chicago and had even a greater success in that city. It goes on to say: The Russian Jews are a thrifty people, thoroughly appreciating the benefits accruing to them as beneficiaries of loan societies. The borrowers soon realize that the loan organization is to help no more nor less than a savings bank where the original amounts is loaned to him with the privilege of borrowing it again when it has been repaid. Thus, each time he pays his small weekly installment, he is saving so much out of his savings for his particular use at some future day. It is this advantage that accounts for the proper returns on money loaned, and the fact that fully 90 per cent. of all the money so loaned is promptly repaid.

LAWYER ACCUSED IN BIG LAND DEAL

Charges of fraudulent representations on the part of Lawyer Alfred P. Johnson of Cambridge are made in a bill in equity filed to-day in the Suffolk Superior Court by Loretta A. Campbell of New York. Miss Symonds says that she purchased 120 acres of the old Gore estate in Waltham for $2,000 cash and a mortgage for $50,000. Later she paid off $1,000 on the mortgage. There was a default in the payment of the mortgage, and a foreclosure sale was advertised. At the time of the sale it is said because of the publication notice of the first being three days late. Miss Symonds claims that at this point Lawyer Johnson falsely represented to her that Edward Gore had purchased the property at the first foreclosure sale, and also that in January of the following year, edition of affairs she then signed away her rights in the property for $200, which was a ridiculous price therefor."

PLAN NEW ARRESTS IN THOMPSON CASE

What more could I do?" said Cornelius Lynch, No. 44 Maple avenue, to Judge Reed in the police court. The court asked Lynch who was supporting the family, and Lynch answered that his wife had been working every day. "But she could not work unless I remained at home and minded the baby."

'L' SURRENDERS ON LONG LEASE

After Attorney Brandeis left the executive chamber, Governor Foss talked with Senator George Holden Tinkham. A few minutes later he sent for Senator Frank D. Bennett of Saugus, leader in the Elevated's battle for its "sacred" bill through the Legislature. Senator Tinkham led the opposition to the bill. Governor Foss talked to both leaders for nearly an hour.

At the conference agreement was effected as to the features of the two bills which are to take care of the Boston Elevated—West End—subway lease proceedings. The bills have already been drafted along these lines for several days. Governor Foss, in a larger way, the provisions of two bills offered by Senator Tinkham have been followed out in the making of the new measures.

Credit for the agreement for a twenty-five year lease of the subways and tunnels and for the consolidation idea is given to Senator Tinkham. Attorney Brandeis is the author of the agreement for the consolidation on a 7 per cent. basis.

Foss in Fighting Mood.

Governor Foss' peremptory action to-day was no surprise to those who have watched the Elevated's fight with close attention. Even at the second conference to-day, it was understood that senator Bennett held off for further concessions from the Legislature. The latter was in a fighting mood. He made it plain that his mind was firmly made up.

It was this determined attitude of Governor Foss that threw a big scare into the camp of the Boston Elevated to-day, as it has done ever since the Governor took up the matter of a short term lease to the company.

It was announced that the two subsidiary bills to be offered for all or part of bills in regard to transportation problems in Boston will be introduced this afternoon, the first by Senator Bennett, chairman of the Committee on Street Railways, providing for the subways and tunnels, which are to be leased to the Elevated for a rate of 4½ per cent until July 1, 1936, and the second bill by Senator Tinkham. This is the bill which provides for the consolidation of the Elevated and the West End Street Railway Companies on a 7 per cent. dividend basis.

Extend Leases to 1936.

The leases of all existing subways are to be extended until July 1, 1936. On that day all leases for subways and tunnels expire. After that, unless the Legislature peremptorily extends them for a longer period, these leases will be considered as extending indefinitely, subject to annulment by the city council or by the Legislature.

The committee appointed at a mass meeting in Faneuil Hall on February 15 called upon Governor Foss to-day to present the resolutions adopted at that meeting. The committee consisted of Simon Vorenberg, Alexander Whiteside, Ferdinand Briggs, James Hagerty and Max Mitchell.

In the memorial presented to the Governor the committee says:

"We believe an extension of the present subway tracks looping at Park street should be made, so that these tracks should run parallel with the present tracks from Park street to Scollay square, Adams square, Harmarket square and the North Station, as an alternative, that the proposed Boylston street subway should be extended from Park street to Scollay square, Adams square, Harmarket square and the North Station, Either of these extensions is fair and feasible and would be of great advantage to the traveling public and the city.

Abolition of Tunnel.

In any subway bill passed by the Legislature the Babson amendment, so-called, providing for the immediate abolition of the East Boston tunnel tolls, should be incorporated. We believe that we cannot emphasize too strongly the injustice of this flaw to the public point of view.

We have already advocated the extension of the East Boston tunnel from Scollay square through to Bowdoin square and the West End and we wish again to emphasize the benefits which exists for this extension. We understand, however, that this has to be provided for in any case in the bills which have been presented to the Legislature.

Governor Foss assured the committee that he would take the matter under advisement.

$60,000 FIRE IN NEW BEDFORD

NEW BEDFORD, June 27.—A two-alarm fire to-day destroyed the storehouses of the Young & Kimball Oil Refinery plant with a loss of $60,000 in supplies and inflammable oils, and threatened the entire district in the South End. Thousands of gallons of oil poured from the burning buildings into the streets and ran thence to the Acushnet River. The flaming oil ignited several nearby buildings and tenement houses.

The fire was one of the most dangerous in the city in a long time. The fire raged fiercely. Because of the inflammable nature of the barrels stored in the Young & Kimball storehouses, the fire was at its height within fifteen minutes after it started. Within an hour it was under control, due to the fine work of the local fire department.

The police have already started an investigation in the belief that the fire was of incendiary origin.

The first alarm was pulled at 10:15 from box 48, which is in the centre of the South End tenement and factory district. Chief Cahill at once ordered a second alarm, as he realized the danger to surrounding buildings, one of which was the City Cotton Mills, with 30,000 spindles, which is located about thirty feet away from the burned storehouses. The three houses were wooden structures and burned like tinder. Once the flames had communicated to the contents of 4,000 barrels in the buildings, there was no stopping the spread of the fire until it had levelled the tenements to the ground. The greatest danger came from the burning oil, which scattered in all directions and floated, still burning, down the river.

PAVLOVA HELPS MAKE FOE PAY

LONDON, June 27.—Pavlova and Mordkin, the dancers, were the central figures in a law suit which was heard in the High Court of Justice. The case grew out of a claim brought against Mordkin by Mayer, a theatrical agent, for a commission alleged to be due the latter for getting the dancer an engagement at the Crystal Palace.

When Pavlova was called to the stand as a witness she seemed to enjoy testifying against Mordkin keenly. She smiled radiantly and gesticulated abundantly as she told how Mayer got the engagement for herself and a troupe of dancers at $2,000 a week. She had asked that Mordkin be hired to dance with her and this was done, the terms being that Mordkin should receive $400 weekly, out of which sum he was to pay the agent a commission of 10 per cent.

She had said that at that time she felt friendly toward Mordkin, but added with a significant smile and a shrug "But now? Well, no!"

MISS EVA BOOTH, WHO TELLS PLAN OF SALVATION NAVY

SALVATION NAVY FOR ALL SAILORS

"We have a great army working for God, and we are going to have a great navy which shall mission among the longshoremen and sailormen, winning them to Christ," says Commander Eva Booth, who is in Boston from the Canadian headquarters of Salvation Army's new fresh air camp at Canton.

"The launching of the first boat of our American navy in New York last Wednesday was a most inspiring sight. I am looking forward to the formation of a great fleet of both larger and smaller boats, which shall scour the rivers and harbors and coasts, reaching all the seafaring men whom we have been unable to reach before.

"I wish you Boston people had been present at the launching. It was wonderful. It was down off the Battery, just at noon. In spite of the fact that it was a scorching hot day, all the park around the headstand was black with people.

Made a Great Crowd.

"Wall Street brokers and bankers, on their way to lunch stepped over, and the sailors swarmed up from the water edge, and clerks and messengers and travelers, on their way to the ferries, all helped to swell the great throng. We were given the use of the band stand, and we had our own band down there, and used it as a platform for the speakers.

"We had an open air meeting, for that tremendous audience, conducted by the boats crew. It was a beautiful sight, the boat, glistening in its new coat of white paint and brilliant with the blood red army flag, and the beloved national flag. The crew uniforms of white were brightened by the dash of red of the Salvation Army insignia. There happened to be a brisk breeze at the moment, with quite a chop in the water in the harbor. As the boat slid off, the band struck up 'God Be with You Till We Meet again,' and the boat meeting the freight water, skimmed up and down over the waves, just like a great white bird dotted with color.

"And as I gave the prayer of consecration, there was scarcely a man of all those thousands, many of them drawn by mere curiosity, who did not bow his head.

"The boat, which is most admirably suited to our purpose, is the gift of Bradley Lee Gilbert, the well-known architect, who designed many of New York's most famous skyscrapers. It is thirty-five feet long, has a twelve foot beam, and sleeps from five to nine people. It was built by Mr. Gilbert.

The Skipper is a Major.

"Our skipper is Major Ericson, a man with years of experience as a major in our army. His charming wife will also live on the boat, and will do much for the work. She has a beautiful voice, plays the piano and guitar, has taken a thorough course in first aid to the injured, and has many other most practical accomplishments. The sailor of the boat is a typical old salt with thirty years' experience.

"He volunteered for the work just as soon as he heard the boat was in commission. I had him speak at the launching, and he made a great hit. He has a quaint, original way of expressing himself, and with his hands and arms all tattooed with anchors, he made a most picturesque figure. The engineer and two other persons not yet decided on will complete the crew. We plan to have the boat cruise continuously, as in the winter it can sail in Southern waters.

"We want to reach the sailors and longshoremen and river men, who are so difficult to reach from land. One friend has given us 75,000 pamphlets of charming stories, which we think will prove very popular.

RACES ACROSS OCEAN TO WED ON DATE SET

LONDON, June 27.—Unwilling to postpone his wedding, Kensel M. Rogers Winslow of Racine, Wis., a cousin of Mrs. Ogden Mills Reid of New York, hurried across the Atlantic after a 1,000-mile rush to the seacoast to marry Miss Elizabeth Chimacoff Miller of Hyde Park, Mass., Dover last Friday. Winslow and Miss Miller had planned their wedding for June 25, several months ago. But Miss Miller's health failed and she went to Baden-Baden. She expected to be able to be at the wedding in Racine on the date set, but circumstances prevented.

FIND MISSING LYNN BOY DEAD IN WATER

A crowd of volunteers, searching for four-year-old James Crowley of Lynn, who strolled away from his home yesterday afternoon to find the little lad's body lying at the bottom of a hole in an abandoned wharf on lower Washington street in that city. It is believed that the boy, while walking down the wharf, fell through the hole. He dropped fifteen feet to the water, which was more than three feet deep at the time of the accident.

FATAL RACE BATTLE.

ELKINS, W. Va., June 27.—As a result of a race battle in Weaver, eight miles from here, last night between Italians and Americans, H. E. Schaffer is dying and eight Italians, believed to be fatally injured, are hidden in the hills by friends to prevent their arrest.

THREAT TO CUT OFF CITY'S MILK

Boston will have a milk famine beginning Saturday if farmers carry out their threat to withhold all milk, beginning July 1, which they made at a meeting of the Boston Co-operative Milk Producers' Company at the American House. A poll of farmers who supply the Boston market is being made to see if the majority of the producers are in favor of taking action to compel the contractors to accede to their demand for 35 cents a can.

The milk situation is almost hopelessly muddled. The contractors have refused to meet representatives of the producers on the grounds that they are under indictment by a federal grand jury for alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, and instead of making an illegal agreement. The producers say that this is only a subterfuge, and that the contractors are trying by this means to ignore their demand for thirty-five cents a can in the fifty-five to seventy-five-mile zones.

Only three days remain before there must be an agreement of some kind or the old agreement expires on July 1. "Throw away your milk for three days unless we get our price," is the slogan of many members who attended the producers' meeting.

That the contractors fear trouble is shown in the statement of J. F. Davis, a New Hampshire producer, who said today:

"The contractors are offering any price to producers in any section who are not now on their lists. They are ignoring the demands of their regular producers, who are seeking new sources of supply so as to have milk in case the producers' meeting votes to withhold all milk on July 1. They are paying me 21 cents a can for milk that costs me 35 cents a can to produce."

Professor G. W. Sandborn of the New Hampshire College and a member of the Milk Producers' Association, said today:

"The contractors have refused to meet our representatives because of the fear of violating the Sherman act. They are merely using this as an excuse. They know something has come up that will allow them to decline to receive our representatives."

A NERVOUS WRECK

Had no Appetite and Was Greatly Reduced in Weight.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Restored This Ohio Woman's Health. She Gained in Weight and Eats Heartily Again.

When the nervous system is at fault, we may expect symptoms of the disorder to show in almost every organ of the body for all of these organs are controlled in their special activities by the nerves.

"I was all run down in every way," says, Mrs. J. M. Barclay, of No. 876 Curtis avenue, Columbus, Ohio, "and was a nervous wreck. I was not confined to the bed except for a day or so at a time, but I had no appetite and was greatly reduced in weight. I was irritable and melancholy all of the time, could not get any rest and my nerves were in such a state that I would have to get up in the night and walk the floor. I suffered in this way for four years and although I had two doctors attend me, neither helped me.

"Thinking that a change of climate might benefit me I went to visit relatives of my husband in Nova Scotia and they strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They had much faith in advertised medicines but I got a box of the pills and they commenced to help me at once. I had not taken them a week before I was able to get a good night's rest. I kept on taking them and gained in flesh and could eat a hearty meal. I always speak highly of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for I know they are good for nervous disorders."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the most direct cure for nervous troubles because they remove the cause of these diseases by building up and purifying the blood. The pure blood which they make furnishes the nerves with needed elements until they are restored to their normal strength. The pills have made so many remarkable cures in nervous disorders that no sufferer can afford to neglect giving them a trial.

They can be obtained at any drug store or direct from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., at 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50. While so promptly effective, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain no harmful stimulants or opiates. They are perfectly safe and create no drug habit. Write for a free copy of our new booklet, "Diseases of the Nervous System." The booklet describes symptoms and gives such useful information.

ALUMNI DAY AT DARTMOUTH

HANOVER, N. H., June 27.—The Dartmouth alumni celebrated today in connection with the 142d Commencement. Although they have been batting a big reunion ever since Saturday night, this is especially their day.

Judge David Cross of Manchester, N. H., a member of the class of '41, held a reunion by himself as far as his daughter was concerned, but was welcomed into the senior class, of which he is an honorary member.

In Richardson Hall, "the boys of '61" held forth during the day and talked over the war days and college days. Tonight they will be the guests at a dinner given by President Emeritus Tucker, a member of the class. In the reunion are the following twelve men out of nineteen living members: Colonel George A. Bruce of Brookline, Mass.; Hon. Joseph Y. Chase of Marshall; Mo.; George W. Estabrook of Boston, Mass.; Rev. George L. Gleason of Topsfield, Mass.; Eben H. Davis of Beach Bluff, Mass.; Rear Admiral Lucien Young of Quincy, Mass.; Henry B. Moore of Tonopah, Nev.; Harold W. Page of Northfield, Minn.; Major E. D. Rollington of Chicago; Gelon B. Swasey of Daytona, Fla.; Gilman H. Tucker of New York and William J. Tucker of Hanover, N. H.

The program today included the following formal affairs: Meeting of the Phi Beta Kappa society, baseball game between Amherst and Dartmouth, meeting of the alumnus association and supper given by Parkhurst Hall, the new administration building given by Mrs. Edward Parkhurst of Winchester, Mass.

The big reunions today were those of the class of '86, '91, '96, and '01. The '86 delegation appeared in costumes of green and white stripes, resembling prison suits, while the '01 men wore Indian suits, and the '01 men natty uniform of green and white.

SEA BREAKS IN ON NOVA SCOTIA MINE

SYDNEY, N. S., June 27.—The Port Hood coal mines have been flooded with the sea, causing a probable total loss of the property. The main shaft of the mine is only a short distance from the ocean and while the cause of the break is unknown, it is supposed that the constant wear of the waves broke through the retaining walls of the mine pit. Water is now filling it to a depth of over 100 feet early today.

AUDIENCES AT CASTLE SQUARE GIVE A HEARTY GREETING TO FAVORITE

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

It was something of a double bill at the Castle Square Theatre yesterday when Mr. Craig offered not only "The Genius" as an attraction, but presented Howell Hansel in the leading role. It was Mr. Hansel's first appearance in Boston since the week of "The Rivals" at the Castle Square Theatre more than a year ago, and to the patrons of that theatre his return this time is taken as an event to be remembered.

One might have thought that yesterday's performance of "The Genius" was an old home week reception, so cordially was Mr. Hansel welcomed back to Boston, and he responded to the big reception by acting his best all through the play, which, of course, pleased everybody. Any fear that Mr. Hansel may have had that he would be forgotten after was scattered in many directions, and in a most artistic speech he squared himself with his friends.

With Mr. Hansel drawing so much attention, the performance took on a pretty second aspect that was most agreeable and unanimous as the play was not neglected both the afternoon and evening moved smoothly in Castle Square.

"The Genius," which brought with merriment and Mr. Hansel to town, was once used by Nat Goodwin as a means of projecting himself before the public, although he never reached Boston with the play, he found it a satisfactory vehicle for his own peculiar talents.

In Mr. Hansel's case not about the stage in Mr. Goodwin's old role—which by the way is that of a financier—Mr. Hansel took excellent care of himself at all times. The play lent itself to farcical situations and Mr. Craig's company was kept busy.

Naturally the honors of the day fell to Mr. Hansel, who carried the heaviest burden in a role built for another actor. But he held his own, however.

The play was rich in character roles played by Donald Meek, George Hassel and Bert Young, while Cyril Ridings, as an eccentric artist, was decidedly humorous. Mr. Hassel again proved himself an actor of ability by his telling work as an old musician. He made Otto a positive joy.

The surprise of the performance was supplied by Miss Florence Shirley, who blossomed into a beautiful blonde young thing, whose good years of age are a perfect mate. Her romantic disposition did not match her role. Gertrude Bixley gave a capital performance as an artist's model, carrying the heaviest feminine responsibility of the play.

Plays That Remain.

The second and final week of "The Man Who Owns Broadway" was begun at the Majestic Theatre yesterday. Mr. Morison's company has found this an especially happy engagement and another week of capacity audiences is the prospect.

The final week of "Dr. De Luxe" was begun at the Colonial Theatre last evening. This piece might have remained in Boston all Summer but for previous arrangements that make any further extension of its engagement impossible.

Keith's.

The majority of the acts at Keith's this week are given for the first time on any stage. Nothing for vaudeville entertainment may be said to exceed the usual high standard set by the house. "The Meistersingers" especially as well as the generous applause evoked by the combined Harvard, Schubert and Weber quartette, shows that this new form of vaudeville entertainment is highly appreciated. The quartette's singing much better this week than last, nevertheless giving evidence of much confidence.

Pollard, the nonchalant juggler, is a sensation. He handles billiard cues, plates and other objects in a manner which stamps him a peer in his line. Lillian Ashley has a good "Cissy" monologue and her songs, stories and jokes are making a favorable impression.

The Langdons, a pretty woman and a funny chauffeur, have a comedy sketch in which they have a satisfactory vehicle "nobilies" and furnish some amusing situations. Weimar Jones are liable to fulfill their rich. Johnny Johnstone's good nature is getting him many a hand. His parody on the "Poet and Peasant" is something worth listening to. Mr. and Mrs. Hugh J. Emmett have a countryside sketch that is unsurpassed. Mr. Emmett is a skilled musician and his vertial feats with the ukulele are far above the ordinary.

Globe Theatre.

An especially attractive program was offered at the Globe Theatre yesterday. It was headed by the Moonlight Maids, an excellent singing novelty that caught on instantly with the audiences. Other vaudeville features were supplied by the Freeman Brothers, La Fore and Dooley and Jane McNaughton, who styles himself the "songster singer." The motion pictures were all new, as well as the illustrated songs.

Bass Point.

That Bass Point and Nahant retain their popularity from season to season has been made especially manifest this year when the Nahant boats resumed regular service. Near Boston, but still far removed from its stuffy, city atmosphere, the sail across the bay is one that offers a welcome relief to those who wish to escape the city's uncomfortable heat.

Paragon Park.

The week at Paragon Park opened brilliantly yesterday. The new features at the park have become immensely popular with the patrons, and besides the free circus and plain garden, there are enough other novelties to keep everyone busy during the pleasure hour day. The west feature, Lilian Isles, drew profound attention yesterday.

Norumbega Park.

The new vaudeville act at Norumbega Park yesterday was one of the most enjoyable of the season. The leading feature was supplied by the Three Brennans, who worked on the supported holders. Another amusing feature was the musical act of Craig and Person, who played on various buglings as with distinctly comedy touch. The programme included several other novel acts.

Orpheum Theatre.

Eddie Clark was the leading spirit in the new bill at the Orpheum Theatre yesterday. Mr. Clark gave a number of clever impersonations that were well received by the audiences. The Melrose Comedy Four furnished a musical act that was worth hearing, and several other numbers completed the bill.

Hub Theatre.

The Vaudeville Acts headed the new bill at the Hub Theatre yesterday. It was a popular act. There were also new motion pictures.

New Palace Theatre.

The program of pictures and illustrated songs at the New Palace Theatre yesterday was enjoyed by large audiences. The Summer policy at the Palace is one that is attracting unusual attention from theatregoers.

Scenic Temple.

The new program at the Scenic Temple yesterday was made up of vaudeville novelties and motion pictures, supplemented by a concert programme by Leona Lee, violinist.

Next Week's Plays.

The offering at the Majestic Theatre next week will be "Zaza," which is to be followed by "Graustark," dramatized by David Belasco.

"The Barrier" will be the offering at the Castle Square Theatre next Monday by Mr. Craig's company. This will be the first time the play has ever been given in Boston.

Gloucester Trips.

One of the most popular as well as beautiful water trips out of Boston is furnished by the boats of the Gloucester line. These boats give their passengers the real taste of ocean sailing, skirting the picturesque North Shore. The Gloucester boats are fully equipped for the comfort of passengers, which adds greatly to the pleasure of the trip.

King Philip Trips.

Passengers on the steamer King Philip yesterday reported an excellent outing, with several big catches of fish.

Austin & Stone's.

The Honey Boys and Girls at Austin & Stone's Museum began their final week yesterday. There were several new features in the programme.

Provincetown Trips.

The new steamer Dorothy Bradford is adding to the popularity of Provincetown as a Summer resort by making the trip to that quaint spot one of the most agreeable of the many that have Boston as a starting place.

Satellite Trips.

The trips of the steamer Satellite to the fishing grounds always yield large catches of fish, which makes things especially satisfactory to the passengers.

One Effect of Automobiling

It is now generally recognized that more men and women are becoming bald today than ever before, and the cause is automobiling.

Automobiles stir up a terrible lot of dust, and in this dust are all sorts of microbes and germs.

These settle upon the hair and take lodgment in the scalp, thus setting up a diseased condition that works its way down to the hair roots.

Then the hair begins to fall out.

There is only one remedy, and that is frequent washing with Birt's Head Wash.

Ordinary soaps and shampoos are positively injurious, because they contain an excess of alkali, and alkali has a deadly effect on the hair.

Birt's Head Wash is made of neutral creamy soap, scientifically combined with Glycerin, White of Eggs, Cocoanut Oil and a small quantity of Salicylic Acid, to destroy germs and remove disagreeable odors.

TRADE TOURISTS REACH LONDON

The first official word from the European tour party was received by the Boston Chamber of Commerce to-day. A cable message from Secretary James A. McKibben stated that the party would arrive in London to-day at 8 a. m. To-day they take an extensive automobile ride to obtain a general view of the city. The cablegram also stated that the party yesterday visited the Liverpool Docks, Liverpool Chamber of Commerce and the Co-operative stores. A conference was held with the Lord Mayor and the heads of the city departments in reference to municipal matters.

The White Star and Cunard docks were particular objects of interest, which the party desired to see. Sunday was occupied with a trip to Port Sunlight, six miles from Liverpool, the Garden City that was one of the pioneers in the movement to provide comfortable homes for working people within an area laid out according to a comprehensive plan combining beauty with utility.

It is expected that a conference will be arranged with the officials of the old city corporation, so that the public activities of British cities as well as the social, industrial, insurance, labor bureau, and other undertakings upon which the empire has recently embarked.

The party will leave London Sunday at 2:30 p. m. by the Southeastern Railway going to Paris by way of Folkestone and Boulogne.

What one eats during hot weather matters more than at any other time of the year. And that is a matter of WHERE you eat. The Venetian Room and its menu are delightful resources.

FOSS SPLITS FROM LANCERS

Eugene N. Foss, in his official capacity as Governor of the Commonwealth, goes to-morrow to the commencement exercises of Harvard University. He will go attended by five members of his military staff, and unattended by the gay troop of cavaliers known as the National Lancers.

The Governor will not be attended by the Lancers in person nor by their good wishes, for he has upset all precedent in suddenly countermanding the order for the troopers to escort him as they have escorted Governors to Harvard commencements for the last seventy-five years.

Moreover, the precedent was overturned without a word of explanation, and a pure-ly formal command from the Adjutant-General of the State was the first intimation that was vouchsafed that the presence of the Lancers was not desired.

Previous orders from headquarters had commanded their attendance, and the men were prepared for the splendid annual oc-casion when they display their bravery of gold and scarlet to appanding hundreds of civilians. No military happening in years has caused such a turmoil of con-jecture and indignation in military circles.

Adjutant-General Gardner Pearson in-sued the first order and he issued also the second, but when some explanation was sought from him to-day he assumed an most precise military manner. He had nothing more to say than:

"You would better see the Governor. The orders came from him and if there is any explanation to be made it will be made by the Commander-in-Chief."

Naturally no other officer of the militia would say anything officially about an incident that has thrown Harvard's com-mencement of a considerable part of its pomp and circumstance, but there was much private discussion and analysis of the following order:

Extract from special order 119, says: "Extract 2 of special orders No. 110 is hereby revoked and the following sub-stituted therefor. The following named officers of the staff of the commander-in-chief will report to the staff room, State House, Boston, Wednesday, June 28, 1911, at 9 a. m., for the purpose of attending the commander-in-chief at the Commence-ment exercises at Harvard College.

"Uniform full dress dismounted detail.

"Brigadier-General Gardner W. Pearson, the ad-jutant-general and staff.

"Major Arthur Ross Kimball, aide-de-camp.

"Captain Stuart W. Wile, ordnance department, aide-de-camp.

"First Lieutenant Harry D. Cowles, Ninth infantry, aide-de-camp.

"First Lieutenant Joseph W. Bartlett, First Corps of Cadets, aide-de-camp."

MORMON CHIEF SUGAR WITNESS

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Prophet Jo-seph Smith, head of the Mormon church, and holder of several thousand shares in the Utah-Idaho Sugar Company, was the chief witness before the House Committee investigating the Sugar Trust to-day, while many women who had been drawn to the hearing by curiosity craned their necks to see the aged leader.

The Mormon leader appeared under pro-test and came to Washington from Salt Lake City only after the committee had threatened to send a marshal after him.

Prophet Smith insisted that he knew little of the relations between the beet sugar industries of the West, the Havem-meyers, and the American Sugar Refining Company. His attitude at the start was that of "know-nothing," but he soon ad-mitted that the Mormon church owned sugar stock.

Smith acknowledged that he owned five thousand shares of the Utah-Idaho Sugar Company and seventy shares of the Ana-conda Company.

"Does the Church own any stock in the Utah-Idaho Company?" then asked Chair-man Hardwick.

"Yes, it owns 40,815 shares."

"How is that stock listed?"

"It is listed in the name of Joseph F. Smith, trustee," replied the Mormon leader.

"Did the Church go into the Havemeyer combine?"

"Not as a church," replied Smith.

"At the time of the Havemeyer combine, we were struggling against great difficulties with the beet sugar industry in Utah. All I know is that Mr. Havemeyer sent an emissary to us who made the deal for the combination."

FLYNN RESIDENCE IS LOOTED BY THIEVES

Burglars broke into the residence of C. G. Flynn, a Boston leather merchant, at No. 1 Lindsey street, Dorchester, late last night.

Mr. Flynn and his family were at their summer home at Hull. The burglars gained entrance to the house through a rear window and every room from cellar to roof was ransacked. Just what was taken by the burglars is not known, but it is said the value of the loot will run into the thousands.

BANDIT SHOOTS TWO; ONE DEAD

hage can be stopped, the doctors may be able to save the injured man's life.

Shots Arouse Town.

The sound of the shooting awakened half the people in the town and scores of per-sons rushed from their homes. McQuer-ry and Follette were found lying in the gutter. Dr. Benjamin J. Butler was one of the first to reach the spot.

One glance told him that McQuarry was dead and he gave his attention to Follette. While the doctor was attempting to stop the flow of blood from the wound in Fol-lette's mouth, Chief of Police Andrews had summoned an improvised ambulance and the injured man was hurried to the hos-pital.

When he arrived there his condition was such that the surgeons dared not probe for the bullet. Anaesthetics were admin-istered and after an examination the sur-geons said his chances of recovery are slim.

Boy Gives a Clew.

On the way to the hospital Follette ac-quainted the police with the circumstances surrounding the shooting and furnished them with a description of the man who had done the shooting. He was about thirty-five years old, of medium height and build, and dark and swarthy complexioned. He wore dark clothes and a dark slouch hat.

The hat, revolver and bag were dropped by the robber in his flight. These were found by the police, and an investigation revealed the fact that the East Greenwich bleachery had been broken into during the night, and several yards of cloth stolen from the factory were found in the bag.

The bag is also said to have been made in the bleachery on a machine accessible only to employes. The description of the robber corresponds in many respects to a man who is employed in the bleachery and he is believed to be the one who did the shooting.

POOR CHILDREN ON AUTO OUTING

Two hundred and thirty children were the happy ones to-day when the Boston Young Men Hebrew Association took the in-mates of the Leopold Morse Home for Indigent Jewish Children and the Helping Hand Society for Destitute Jewish Chil-dren on an outing and automobile ride to Pleasant Park, Billerica.

Big five machines were loaned by Rox-bury and Jamaica Plain friends and pro-vided with horns and American flags the kids once made Elliot square, Roxbury, a big noise when the machines started on the trip or in school rooms.

There were two automobiles loaded with big lunches to eat. There were also sev-eral prizes which were offered to the chil-dren in the final and baseball games at the park.

Those in charge of the outing from the Y. M. H. A. were: Charles Cliu, chair-man; A. A. Finkelstein, F. I. Wein-stein, H. Nollman, Bernard Morrison, Dr. Hy. Falckson, and J. Berkowitz.

The institutions were represented by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fleischer, Lemuel Colburn, superintendent of the Helping Hand Home; Mr. H. Cohen, Mrs. M. Cohen, Dr. R. Board, Rev. Dr. Rudnechtz, Mrs. Alex-ander of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Helping Hand Home, and David Kasanof.

DELCASSE RETAINS CABINET PORTFOLIO

PARIS, June 27.—M. Cailloux, who was commissioned by President Fallieres to form a new cabinet, announced to-day that M. Delcasse had consented to retain his portfolio as Minister of Marine. The offices of Minister of Foreign Affairs have been offered to Justin de Selves, for fifteen years prefect of the Department of the Seine. M. Cailloux has offered Eugene Etienne the post of Minister of War, while the post of Minister of Posts will probably go to M. Crappi or M. Jean Noney.

THREE IN U. S. COURT FOR MURDER AT SEA

William DeGraff, William Nelson and Anton Pavlekich, charged with the murder of Captain Charles H. Wyman, who was found murdered in his cabin aboard the barge Glendower in Massachusetts Bay three weeks ago, were before United States Commissioner Hayes to-day. Commissioner Hayes ordered the case continued to July 3.

WEYMANN QUITS GREAT AIR RACE

BRUSSELS, June 27.—As a result of the misfortunes with which he has met, Charles T. Weymann, the only American contestant in the circuit of Europe air race, to-day withdrew from the contest, giving up all chance for the $94,000 in prizes.

RAINS ENDANGER WORK ON MAINE

HAVANA, June 27.—Heavy rains are re-tarding the progress of raising the sunken battleship Maine and endangering the work. The caffердам has been weakened, and tons of rock are being dumped about the dam to strengthen it. A heavy rain has also filled the dam several feet above the mark to which it had been pumped out.

BOY DROWNS AT MYSTIC WHARF

Forest Winslow, fifteen years old, of No. 51 Aldrich street, Roslindale, was drowned at the Mystic Wharf, Charlestown, early to-day, when he attempted to climb aboard the coal barge Coastwise and slipped be-tween the side of the vessel and the wharf.

Winslow was about to start on his return to Baltimore as the guest of John Crowley, son of Captain Crowley of the Coastwise. He was boarding the barge when the accident happened, and it is be-lieved that he struck his head on the wharf when he fell and became unconscious, because he sank immediately. Several of the crew made attempts to rescue him, but the narrow space between the vessel and the wharf did not permit of swimming. The body was recovered by the harbor police.

MRS. THOMAS SEEKS A DIVORCE

PARIS, June 27.—Edward Russell Thomas, former associate of Felix Angerstein Hellen and Charles W. Morse, chieftain, yachtsman and automobile speeder, is about to be sued for divorce in the French courts by Linda Lee Thomas. The wife, who is one of the most beautiful women in American society and a former belle of Louisville, Ky., has definitely refused the reconciliation friends have been trying to bring about, according to her intimates. Although no statement has been made by Mrs. Thomas as to her reasons for planning legal separation, it is known that she is angered by the persistent reports that connect her husband's name with a woman who is said to be the very image of Evelyn Thaw. Mr. Thomas has been abroad two years and no one has been seen with this woman. Who was at first supposed to be the wife of Harry Thaw.

GIRL EXPLAINS WEDDING LEE

Audrey F. Keyes, who slipped away from home in Washington last week, went to Buffalo and there married Edward Valentine Lee, former paymaster's clerk in the United States Navy, who is under arrest charged with forging checks for $46,000 from the safe of the outfitting firm for which he was employed. The girl, who is from home and has many friends in Richmond, Va., where she was born, said she "fell in love with Lee" when he was the Federal building in Washington, and that while I held up to the disapproval of my parents. There I was followed. We got the license and went to Buffalo. "On the way home my parents met me and spoke with the story of my husband's arrest. I told them that I loved him and that I don't care. I will wait for him and help him in every way I can."

Mrs. Lee told the authorities that she had not seen her husband from the time he was arrested, and did not know where he was. "The last I heard," she said, "I would have given him up sooner than he wouldn't have spent the money and might have gotten off with a lighter sentence."

MOVE FOR VOTE ON RECIPROCITY

WASHINGTON, June 27.—With the Root amendment defeated, prospects to-day are brighter for an early vote on the Canadian reciprocity bill. Senator Penrose, chairman of the Finance Committee, has prepared an agreement which he will try to get the Senate to accept. The agreement provides that a vote be taken by unanimous consent on the Canadian reciprocity bill on July 24, and that the farmers' free list bill should be voted on the day following and the wool bill should be voted on on the day following the vote on the free list bill.

Senator Penrose said to-day that he would probably submit the agreement to the Senate to-day and ask for unanimous consent that it be made the standing order of business.

How a "Kissless Bride" Should Be Kissed

GAMBIER TELLS OF MANY KISSES

NEW YORK, June 27.—Sensational testimony given late yesterday in the separation suit of Edith Russel Gambier, "the unkissed bride" of Atlanta, Ga., from her husband, Edward N. Gambier, cashier of the Merchants' National Bank, brought a tremendous crowd of curiosity seekers to Justice Pendleton's chambers in the Supreme court to-day. As a result of testimony given by a chauffeur when Mrs. Gambier's mysterious friend, who took her to restaurants and the theatre after her husband had snubbed at Harvey C. Stickler, a millionaire broker and manufacturer, many seats changed in the court room to-day, owing to leers more about the alleged friendship between the fair plaintiff and Mr. Stickler, who had been known up until yesterday as Mr. Black.

Mr. Gambier was recalled to finish the story which he started upon the witness stand of his courtship and marriage to the Southern girl. Mr. Gambier followed the Stickler chauffeur upon the stand after the latter had testified that Mrs. Gambier sat in Stickler's lap during an automobile ride and that they seemed very friendly. He also said that Mrs. Gambier had free use of the Stickler automobile and that she and Stickler often dined together.

Mrs. Gambier was smartly attired and looked not a bit hysterical, despite her charges of a "kissless honeymoon," as she listened to the proceedings.

"I went to Atlanta and she met me at the train with a kiss," Gambier declared. She and rejected him in January, 1909, he said, but accepted him by mail a year later.

"At her home we acted the usual newly engaged pair. She sat on my lap and we embraced. She wrote on my shirt bosom, 'I love you.'"

Gambier said he returned to New York the next night and ordered an engagement ring. Mrs. Gambier came to New York later for the wedding ceremony, he said.

A batch of forty letters written by Gambier during their courtship was introduced, one dated February 5, 1910, and addressed to her at Atlanta, Ga., expressed Gambier's unwillingness to send her an engagement ring by express.

"Do you know, my precious, that to send an engagement ring to one's fiancee by express seems like an awfully cold proposition," the letter read, "one that grows colder the more I think of it and that I can't reconcile myself to?

"All the sweet and loving sentiment that must needs be a part of the ceremony of a presentation and placing of the ring on the fair lady's finger is lost in the absence. You can't come up here to me for me to go to you. I see no way out, dear, unless maybe a nigger at this be a Cupid's messenger between me and my loved one. Now I must go out and cool off. With love and affection, Thineas. "ED."

ONE ARREST IN AUTO THEFT CASE

In the arrest of Theodore J. Driscoll, giving his residence at No. 928 Harrison avenue, the police believe they have obtained a clew to recent thefts of costly automobiles in this city.

The police charge Driscoll with being one of three men who broke into a private garage at No. 51 Newland street, last Sunday evening and stole a $2,000 touring car. He was arrested at Shawmut avenue and West Canton street just before midnight by Patrolman Timothy Donahue of Division 5.

About 9 o'clock the police received information that the men who had stolen the car had returned to this city and intended selling it to a man on Dover street at 11 o'clock. The men were to be paid $200 and were to come to Dover street prepared to complete the bargain.

Lieutenant Crowley of Division 4 sent Sergeant Hurley and Patrolman Edward Ryan to Dover street. Meanwhile the police received additional information that the men operating the car were to keep an appointment on upper Shawmut avenue, so Lieutenant Crowley had all the policemen covering points there, watching for it, and Donahue was the man to get Driscoll.

Driscoll said he had driven the car to Springfield, Holyoke and Worcester at the direction of his companions, whose names he did not know. He met his companions Sunday night. They had the car at that time and he asked no questions.

The stolen auto belonged to Harry O. Richardson of 314 Warren avenue, Brookline. He left the car in the Newland street garage Sunday, intending to drive to Brockton in yesterday.

The police are still searching for the companions of Driscoll, who is under arrest on a charge of unlawfully appropriating the auto. Within the past week several other autos have been stolen.

SHOE WORKERS ELECT AT ST. PAUL TO-DAY

ST. PAUL, June 27.—At the national convention of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union a resolution introduced by T. E. Joyce of Brockton, Mass., providing that elections of general officers and the adoption of amendments to the constitution should be by a referendum vote, was defeated by a vote of 180 to 60. The resolution caused a spirited discussion. After the vote on referendum was announced, a motion prevailed that election of officers be made the special business to-day. The salary of the general president was raised from $2,000 to $2,500 a year and that of secretary and treasurer to $2,500. A resolution was adopted to allow suspended members to draw sick benefits six months after reinstatement instead of one year afterward.

TRIP FOR BANDITS WILL COST $5,000

With $5,000 for expenses handed them by City Treasurer Slattery, Lieutenant Hugh Lee and Inspectors Michael J. Mooney and Michael H. Crowley leave to-day for New York, where they sail for Europe to bring back three prisoners from Russia, who are charged with robbing the jewelry store of Samuel Ellian of Washington street. If they live frugally and don't give very heavy tips the officers believe the $5,000 will see them through.

$18,000 FOR NEW CITY QUARTERS

City department heads will be kept busy carrying out the work which Mayor Fitzgerald left for them before his departure for Europe to join the Chamber of Commerce party. He settled many important city affairs which have been hanging fire for many months.

After two years of agitation the East Boston court house and police station site question is settled. The School Committee is willing to have the public buildings department take over the old East Boston High School, on Paris and Meridian street, part of which is now occupied by the present East Boston court house. The public buildings department is to pay the School Committee $40,000 for this property.

School Sites Approved.

The leases for the temporary city hall annex on Summer and Devonshire streets, which will be occupied after Saturday by the present occupants of the Old Court House, have been closed. The city is to pay the rent of $18,000 per year for the four upper floors, containing about 50,000 square feet. The original asking price was $37,000 a year for the entire building.

The following school sites have been, or are to be, taken, the necessary papers having been approved by the Mayor: High School of Practical Arts, Morland and Whitton streets; new school in R. L. Pierce district, Beaumont street; extension of yard of Samuel Adams School, East Boston; extension of yard of Edward Everett School, East Boston; extension of yard of Harvard Hill School, Harvard street, Charlestown; extension of yard of Quincy School, Hudson and Tyler streets; additional yard for extension of Brighton High School; additional land for extension of Normal School on Huntington avenue.

Brighton Fire House.

The Mayor approved the selection of a fire house site in Oak square, Brighton, which was recommended by Commissioner Daly.

He left instructions with Superintendent Fish and John C. Kiley to have in readiness a site for him to approve for the proposed South Boston Court House and Police Station.

He also requested the Schoolhouse Commissioners to proceed at once with the necessary plans and other details in connection with the proposed High School of Commerce in the Fenway, the site of which was approved by the School Committee.

STRAWBERRY-EATING CARP IS KILLED

LEE, June 27.—Fred Vosen, who lives near the Valley mill, went after a muskrat and bagged a fat carp instead. Fact! Joe has the carp to prove it. He heard a noise which he was positive was made by a muskrat. After watching it for a while he saw its head and perceived it to be a carp. The thing was swimming along the bank poking its head out of the water and nibbling strawberries. He watched him repeat the operation half a dozen times. He then tried his bait, and succeeded in hooking the fish, and had to shoot him before he could land him. Mr. Vosen was accompanied by several friends, who state that his story of the carp picking strawberries is true in every respect.

BARON GAUTCH NEW AUSTRIAN PREMIER

VIENNA, June 27.—Baron von Bienerth, who has been premier since November, 1908, although it became necessary to reconstruct his cabinet in February, 1911, has resigned as the result of the recent elections. The Emperor immediately appointed Baron Gautch von Frankenthurn to succeed the retiring premier. It is said that the other ministers will retain their portfolios. Baron Gautch has twice before been premier.

DEAD HORSE HILL CLIMB AUGUST 12

By J. C. KERRISON.

The sixth Dead Horse Hill climb at Worcester will be held August 12, and the list of events will be one of the best that can be arranged. The Worcester hill climb has always been one of the big events of the year. This year it will be more so, from the fact that it is the only hill climb scheduled in the East and practically the only event calling for competition arranged in this state.

* * *

The committee in charge of the hill climb has gone to work with a will and is carrying on negotiations with almost every one of the leading manufacturers, looking towards their making entries for this event.

* * *

As Manager Kidder of the United States Tire Company is to take a semi-annual account of stock on Friday next, the local branch on Boylston street will be closed that day. All orders received on June 30 will be promptly filled on Saturday.

* * *

The Winton, Locomobile and Acme branches will unquestionably take possession of their new quarters on Commonwealth avenue this week. This building is almost completed so far as the interior is concerned, and the three agencies are rushing strenuous efforts to get established in their new quarters by the first of the month.

* * *

Manager Blake of the Locomobile Company expects to move his business from Boylston street to Commonwealth avenue on Thursday. Manager Ruffle of the Winton Company will inaugurate the work of removal the latter part of the week. Willie Mr. Whitney of the Park Square Auto Station expects to be in a position to open up the Alco and Stoddard business in his new quarters by Monday next.

Thrilling scenes from the snow and ice of European mountains are to be emulated in the southwestern part of this country, where a Brush runabout is performing service similar to that of Alpine monks and their dogs.

The hero of these experiences is Lon Wescott Beck of Pasadena, Cal., who honestly gives much of the credit to his car and his dog, Rufus. Since he has made himself at his mission and the saying of prospectors on the Western deserts Beck has assisted a score of men who lost their way on account of snow-covered trails.

ROBERT A. SAUNDERS NOT A BATES MAN

Relatives of Robert A. Saunders and some of the newspapers have stated that the man who robbed the lumber company at West Thurston N. H., and then wrote the remarkable confession to the Boston Sunday AMERICAN that he was driven to the act by the need of his wife and newborn baby, is a graduate of Bates College. To correct this impression the AMERICAN gladly prints the following letter:

Editor AMERICAN:

My attention has been called to articles in the Boston AMERICAN, to the effect that Robert Saunders, who has recently given himself notoriety, is a graduate of Bates College. No person of that name was ever in attendance here. The only graduate named Saunders is William Allen Saunders Bates, 1869, a man of the highest character. Kindly give this statement prominence in the AMERICAN.

Yours sincerely,
ELIZABETH D. CHASE, Registrar.

TWO WOMEN ARRESTED AFTER MEN LOSE $23

Two young women who worked the "cold-fingered" game overtime wound up by being arrested early to-day by Special Officers Minor and Patten of the Dudley square station, charged with larceny. They gave their names as Helen Miller, twenty of No. 5 Acton street, South End, and Lucy Price, twenty-one, of No. 24 Phillips street, West End. They are charged with having "touched" William Ferguson of No. 11 Phillips street, Watertown, for $9 in an alleyway off Bromfield street and an hour later Vincent Alea lost $14. They were talking with another man on Bromfield street when arrested.

ELECTRICIAN HERO OF SUBMARINE ACCIDENT

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 27.—A medal will be asked for L. B. Walker, first-class electrician on board the submarine Pike, who was the hero of an explosion last night, when he and two other petty officers were seriously injured. It was for Walker's bravery in dashing through the flames to shut off the gasoline that the others of the crew might have been badly injured, if not killed. Walker was burned about the face and hands. Eight men were charging the batteries when gasoline in the crank pit exploded.

ROOT TREACHERY FAILS IN SENATE

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.
Editorial Correspondence of the AMERICAN.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The manner of a viva voce vote swept into oblivion yesterday the spite amendment of Elihu Root to the reciprocity bill. After the day's debate the trend of adverse senatorial opinion was so evident and overwhelming that the amendment was not even dignified with a call of the roll, and was voted for and confirmed with the lightness of a motion to adjourn.

Not even Root's tiny voice was heard in the faint response of the two or three ayes who ventured to vote for it.

Even LaFollette, who now stands as the champion of the opposition to reciprocity, was strongly against the amendment that would oppose the rank injustice of the spite amendment, even to be sure in favor of the whole measure.

And so the corporation Senator from New York has added another to the long list of public rebukes which have destroyed his political influence and lowered his personal repute.

The debate now proceeds on the free and unamended bill and nothing but obstruction and obstructive stands in the way of its speedy and triumphal passage.

Face to face with reciprocity clear and straight, this famous old fading band of Senate insurgents are also face to face with responsibility and destiny balance of power for a time may be theirs, but also the heavy burden of the record for consistency or betrayal. The insurgents must face the music. They are at the parting of the ways, and the eyes of the people are upon them. Not all the eloquence of fiery protestation from the lips of La Follette and Cummins is going to wipe them now if ties disappoint the professions of the Hastings, and betray the people who consignioned them to Congressional responsibility.

Crisis for Insurgents.

Just as surely records tell that the insurgent party is at the crisis of its history in the reciprocity bill, and its future success or failure will depend on the fulfilment or betrayal of its pledges to this great popular measure. This is the opinion of the political observers in Washington.

The insurgent party is already shaking, and its tottering pillars tremble in the wind of the House and Senate.

The House Progressive Republicans to a large extent have gone to pieces in the extra session by reason of their failure to grasp the questions of reciprocity and tariff revision and deal with them consistently with their past professions.

While some of the House insurgents have supported reciprocity from first to last, and lined up with the Democrats to revise the wool schedule ignoring party lines completely, the most of the progressives have seen fit to ally themselves with "Uncle Dan" Cannon, John Dalzell, Sereno E. Payne and other high tariff men.

The House progressives, under such circumstances, have come in for severe criticism from former supporters. That is the bulk of them have. Now it rests with the Senate progressives to keep themselves out of the hole into which the House progressives have fallen.

La Follette Stakes Much.

Senator La Follette has much at stake in this situation. So have Senators like Cummins, Bristow and Clapp. But La Follette is a presidential candidate practically out in the open. If he doesn't win now, he hopes to win in 1916. If La Follette falls down in trying to convince Congress, and more especially to convince the country, that tariff revision ought to be included with reciprocity, he will weaken himself throughout the country.

The situation, difficult at best, is made more difficult by the fact that if La Follette and his progressive colleagues fight against the reciprocity bill unless it is amended, they will practically be aligning themselves with the Republican Old Guard leaders, like Gallinger, Smoot and others, who are anxious to kill off reciprocity. Such a strange alliance obviously will require considerable objection.

Once in Washington, at an earlier day than usual in this history, William Randolph Hearst, with that keen and almost psychic insight which has made him famous, sized up the insurgents as "a party of wind and ingredients," and predicted they will talk and only 10 per cent action.

There is a point we know not when.

A point we know not where.

That works the boundary of man.

Twixt Honor and Despair.

Only the Insurgents, if they are so wise as they are shockingly ambitious, will know that this reciprocity measure is the "When" and the "Where" for a party pledged to a reformed tariff, to popular interests and to progressive policies.

Clark's Tariff Plan.

Champ Clark and his militant House majority are again playing masterful politics to make this issue plain. It is Champ Clark's purpose to have the House bring out separate schedule tariff bills as rapidly as possible and send them over to the Senate.

The farmers' free list and the wool schedule are already there. Wherefore not an insurgent Senator can claim there bills did not give him abundant opportunity for all the tariff reform legislation he desired, without stabbing reciprocity to death by amendment to get them.

These is not a tariff reform measure in the whole aggregate train of insurgency that cannot be presented and urged under the comprehensive sweep of the schedules which Champ Clark and the House will send to the desk of the Senate after reciprocity is passed.

There is no escape for the La Follette-Cummins group under these conditions. Their positions have been taken before the country. Their pronouncements have been given. It is now proof, reinction or obscurity. It is vote or vanish from the scene.

PHILLIES NEED SOME NEW MEN

The Phillies' management is trying to bolster up the team by trades and deals. There has been a most surprising let-down in the work of the pitchers since the early part of the season, and as a result the club, with ten or twelve pitchers on its payroll, is weak in slab men. Poor judgment in working the pitchers seems to account for some of the disappointments and real misfortunes for the others.

Alexander has been the pitching mainstay of the team since Moore began to fail, and the fact that he alone could always be depended upon has tempted Manager Doolin to give the young giant more work than he needed. The talk of trading Moore, while probably only talk, seems ill advised.

Last year Moore earned the name of being the best pitcher playing ball, and he started out this season as though he were going to repeat. He is a pretty good man to hold on to, if words count. Playing at home the Phillies should improve even enough on trade to get through, but the club's pennant chances now seem quite remote. There is something lacking besides pitchers.

AMATEUR EVENTS AT QUINCY JULY FOURTH

Seven open and two closed events are on the program of the second annual meet under the auspices of the Quincy Fourth of July Association, at Merry-mount Park, Quincy, the afternoon of July 4. The open events will comprise a low yard dash, 440-yard run, 880-yard run, one-mile run, five-mile run, running high jump, and running broad jump. A 440-yard handicap and 440-yard scratch race are the events open only to residents of Quincy. Waltham and Watertown will be given as first prizes in each event. The games are open to all registered amateur athletes.

STEVE FLANAGAN IS AFTER MORE PITCHERS

BROCKTON, June 27.—Manager Flanagan of the Brockton baseball team, despite the acquisition of Hendricks, bought from the Utica Club of the New York State League, is still on the hunt for pitchers. He announces that Bennett of the Plymouth High School pitcher, will be given a trial.

Fred Smith, a pitcher once with Cincinnati, was released after a trial of two weeks, in which he failed to show good form.

UMPIRE KLEM IS FINED FIFTY

ST. LOUIS, June 27.—President Lynch of the National Baseball League announced that after investigation and taking testimony concerning the blow Umpire Klem struck Roger Bresnahan, manager of the St. Louis club, at the close of Friday's game in Chicago, he would fine the umpire $50. President Lynch issued the following statement tonight:

"I find that Manager Bresnahan was not playing in the game, and, under the rules had no business rushing at the umpire to enter a protest. I have been lenient with him for the reason that his general conduct this season has been first-class, but I will not tolerate managers running after the umpires after the game is over and will make an example of the next offender.

"Umpire Klem in striking Manager Bresnahan forgot the most essential part of an umpire's duty, that of keeping his temper."

SEXTON MADE GOOD AS HARVARD COACH

Dr. Sexton made good as baseball coach at Harvard. The Crimson won straight games in the Yale series, defeated Penn and broke even with Brown and pinned the defeat big upon Amherst and Williams, two of the strongest college nines of the year. The defeats by Dartmouth and Princeton hurt, but no college baseball team is expected to win all its games nowadays, or if it be, that expectation is vain and doomed to inevitable disappointment. Losing early such a promising battery as Felton and Lewis, and not being able to use McKay to any extent as a pitcher, Dr. Sexton did not have things all his own way by any means.

BEATEN IN ROUND ONE WITH FITZGERALD

TROY, N. Y., June 27.—Rich Doyle of Boston did not last through the first round with Willie Fitzgerald at the Grogan A. A. outing at Centre Island. Fitzgerald went after his man at the tap of the gong and before Doyle realized what had happened he was trying to recover from the effects of two stomach punches. The second Doyle straightened up Fitz shot his left again to the stomach and Doyle was on his knees with his head over and a right cross to the jaw finished the bout in less than two minutes.

GOLF TOURNEY FOR SCHOOL BOYS JULY 6

The first sixteen qualifying for the championship cup and the second sixteen will qualify for the consolation cup. The beaten eight in the championship round will play for the President's cup.

PAUL BISSON SIGNED UP AS A MACKMAN

Acting upon the recommendation of Tom O'Brien, the Athletics' scout, Manager Mack signed Paul Bisson of Leominster for the Athletics, but the youngster is not to report until next September, when Mack expects his team will have such a commanding lead in the league race that he will be able to try out a lot or new timber.

ARLINGTON AFTER HOLIDAY GAMES

The Arlingtons would like to arrange a single game or doubleheader away from home for July 4. Victories over the Notre Dames, Medford K. of C., Pilgrims of Harvard and St. Mary's of Cambridge entitle the team to get a line of fast opponents in the State, preferably Fitchburg, Leominster and Clinton. Address A. Grannen, No. 378 Massachusetts avenue, Arlington.

GEARY AND GAINES BATTLE AT LOWELL

Joe Geary is fast rounding into shape for his bout Thursday night with Jerry Gaines at the Lowell A. C. Gaines and his admirers are very confident of a win while Geary's followers are just as sure they will be in the best of shape and that the members of the Iphiclie City organization are sure to see one of the best bouts in their city this season.

Why Tommy the Wee Didn't Play Well

News of the death of Tommy Lewis's second wife, who was Miss Frank of Keokuk, has saddened the Pittsburg fans and made them downcast. They had been knocking Tommy the Wee for playing that seemed indifferent. Now they know why. Tommy couldn't concentrate his mind and watch the ball with the inside reason for the ball players off the goo interrupted many times.

IRISH PADDY IN FIGHTING MOOD

By RILEY.

Ah, here's a new champion—Irish Paddy Callahan.

Irish Paddy, the boy with the waiops, dropped in yesterday to say that he had annexed a title and intended to have and to hold it.

Callahan says he has been away for a few days roping out some records and declares that on past performances he has all these featherweights and bantams tied to the post.

Paddy's most recent battle, in which he put Freddie O'Brien of Chelsea away in two rounds, shows just where the "fighting Irish" is at and he says if he can't whip the rest of them if he can only get them into the ring.

Paddy's one hope now is to get a match with either Jimmy Walsh or Al Delmont and if what he says is true I can't see where they can dodge him.

The Brooklyn lad gave a little fight his way in to the finish but had met the same boys and showed where he had scored victories than either of the other two, and in some cases has won where Walsh and Delmont have failed.

Paddy says the club managers are slow in giving him a match, but after beating some of the Woburn fight fans talk about him it is a safe bet that he can get over there any time he wants.

Paddy says he has much in earnest. He wants to fight and all that he asks is that word be sent to Joe McCarthy, his manager.

The track events will all be handicaps and will start at 2 o'clock, while the baseball game race will start at 10 o'clock. The race will start from Gloucester and go through the streets of Gloucester to the corner of West Gloucester to the grove. Gold and silver watches, cups and other prizes will be given in the events. NEWSBOYS HAVE BIG PROGRAM

Just one more day.

Come get your tickets.

The Columbia Theatre is the place and Wednesday night is the time for the big Newsboys' benefit.

Vaudeville, wrestling, and a general athletic carnival is on the card and there certainly will be a big time, the greatest ever. Talent from all the leading theatres have volunteered their services, and you will see more in one night for less money than if you went to a show every night for a week.

Eddie Keevlin and Jimmy Walsh, the bantam champ, are going to be on hand. Walsh will give an illustration of all the holds and things concerning the ring from the days of the bare knuckle battles to the modern scientific bouts.

Joe McCarthy, the pride of South Boston, will have several of his champs on the job, and they will give a well-rehearsed gymnasium sketch with several stars performing. That will be some attraction and possibly the first time that it has appeared before the public in Boston.

Several wrestlers have volunteered to show the gentle art of pushing each other around the mat.

Just a Few Stars.

Now, that is not all of the card. Dick Sears, you all know him, will be there with one of the finest lectures ever staged.

"Doc" Callahan will be on hand with some of his humor and he can make the King laugh. Joe will also sing and will top off a fine comedy act. Don't miss this.

J. Moynahan and "Bill" Stevens will amuse the crowd with a few cartoons that have made the Boston AMERICAN famous.

Harry Edels, the master of ceremonies, promises to spring something great on the night.

He will not let out what he has staged and he will not even venture under a bridge to unearth the wonder.

Harry Lee, an employee of the Columbia Theatre for a long time and he knows all the stars that have been showing at the house, and he should bring out something that will be worth while.

Some Newsboy Talent.

And just keep your eye on the newsboys' talent. Several of the boys have already been on the stage at the Columbia when the book has not been working, and they have been training for some time at the Newsboys' Club and they are there with many lines of acting that will bring down the big money.

Dancing, singing and acrobatic stunts are on the card, and, believe us, they can entertain.

A special musical program has been prepared by Jack Bentley, running through all the late and popular songs of the day will be a feature.

P. S. To-day and to-morrow are the last days to get the tickets. They are on sale at the AMERICAN office, No. 80 Summer street, or at the box office of the Columbia Theatre.

NORWOOD PRESS CLUB HOLDS FIELD DAY

The Norwood Press Club will hold its fourth annual field day July 4, and in connection will have a big athletic meet. Entries are now being received and some of the best-known athletes have been heard from. The 100-yard dash, one-mile run, one-sixth of a mile run, a three-mile run and a mile race, open to residents of Norwood, are on the card. Gold watches will be given as first prizes and silver watches to the second men. Entries close Wednesday, June 28, with George E. Sutton, Jr., Norwood.

RED SOX PURCHASE PROTESTED BY FOGEL

President Fogel of the Philadelphia Nationals has lodged a complaint with the National Commission against the sale of Outfielder Wilson of the Salem club of the Northwest Canada League to the Boston Americans. According to Fogel, the Phillies purchased an option on Wilson from Ted Sullivan and when Lajoie's discovery of the pitcher was assigned Cleveland boosted the price $500, which Philadelphia agreed to pay. When Fogel went to get Wilson's release, learned that John I. Taylor had secured Wilson for the Immaculates. Fogel protest and it looks as though the matter would be threshed out by the National Commission.

JACK 'TWIN' SULLIVAN WANTS PAPKE MATCH

Mike "Twin" Sullivan comes to bat with a little letter. Mike states that his big brother Jack is willing to meet Billy Papke at 160 pounds or any other weight. He states that Jack and Billy both claim the middleweight title, and Jack will meet Papke in a ten or twenty-round bout. Papke can name his own terms, says Mike, and that ought to make Billy come across with a bout.

Mike will take things easy at his home till September, and then he will go after all of the welterweights. Clabby, Gardner, Mohr, Lavin and the others will claim the welterweight title will be on his list for bouts.

Baseball America's Mental Shower Bath

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 27.—Professing his sermon with a recitation of "Casey at the Bat," the Rev. Franklin Baker, pastor of the First Unitarian Church, last night spoke to a large congregation in defence of Sunday baseball. He declared that the $15,000,000 spent for baseball last season was better expended than the same sum in foreign missions, and that the game is "America's mental shower bath."

BILL M'KINNON MEETS M'MAHON

Most of the Boston fight fans will be glad to hear that Bill McKinnon will go against Tom McMahon to-night at the Armory, instead of Capeni. The Chicago middleweight did a straight-away duck act. His record backed by Sam Langford has used up his courage and he was undoubtedly afraid to meet such a sturdy boxer as McMahon.

The excuse he gives for breaking off the match is such a lame one that there is no doubt in the minds of the fans that it is a case of cold feet.

The match was made last Friday night; transportation was sent to Capeni Saturday and he received it Sunday. Yesterday morning Capeni wired to the club that he was displeased because he did not get the transportation earlier, and that he would not go on with the match. As it was impossible to get the transportation to him any quicker, it was no fault of the club.

McKinnon and McMahon met in New York a few weeks ago, and it was one of the hardest-fought contests seen in that city for a long while, according to the reports of the battle. It was declared a draw. The match now arranged is a much better one.

KID SHEA HAS BETTER OF BOUT WITH KELLER

NEW HAVEN, June 27.—Before the home A. C. Kid Shea of Waterbury bested Soupsie Keller of England three rounds and, in the opinion of the crowd, had slightly the better of the go. The match was a fast one and was a good one from start to finish. In the semi-finals Bunny Ford of New Haven all but put Ranger Benjamin of South Norwalk out in twelve rounds, at 135 pounds. In the second preliminary bout, ten rounds at 118 pounds, Tommy Big, also of New Haven knocked out Dick Mahoney of New Haven in the third round. In the first bout of the evening Dick Stone of New Haven and Joseph Young Adonis of New Haven in the first round. The fight was at 142 pounds.

HOLDEN IS N. E. GOLF CHAMPION NOW

HARTFORD, Ct., June 27.—E. A. Holden, Jr., of Yale, won the New England championship tennis cup and title from T. H. Pell of New York, the holder, taking three out of five hard-fought sets. In the first two sets Holden was off in his play and Pell showed his old-time form, but in the last two sets he weakened and was unable to meet Yale man's drives.

The summary—Holden won from Pell, 8—10, 6—4, 6—8, 6—4, 6—2.

TOMMY HOUCK DEFEATS DYSON

NEW YORK, June 27.—Tommy Houck, the clever little Philadelphian whom Eddie McMahon is trying to pilot into the featherweight championship, made a step nearer to that goal when he defeated Young Dyson of Providence in one of the fastest ten-round battles between little fellows boxed in this city in many months. The pair clashed at the Olympic A. C. in Harlem.

Throughout the first five rounds Houck by his superior cleverness and stinging jabs and hits, gained and kept a big advantage over his adversary. Toward the end of the fifth, however, Dyson got home one of his swings and it staggered Houck. At the end the honors rested with Houck.

CORNELL FAVORITE IN THE VARSITY RACE

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 27.—Lowering skies that threatened delay of racing and an almost complete absence of betting were the two striking features of the great regatta day, long the historic Hudson course to-day. The winner will be rowing champion of 1911.

The money, what there was, said Cornell would again sweep the river in two successive meets this afternoon, and the story is called otherwise. Brilliant trial performances by Coach Courtney Pennell varsity gave it in varsity eights a heavy shoving in the final speed tryouts and town to-day and although the crowd was not forthcoming to back it, the best predictions were rife that at last Cornell's proud crest would be lowered on the river stream that Courtney has almost come to consider his own.

Never before in the history of the inter-collegiate annual had bettors been more cautious. There was talk, but little money behind them. Nevertheless in want of anything better they were accepted as the ruling odds. Never, perhaps in the history of the races had there been so little public money changing hands.

Cornell Best in Early Races.

The sky was shut over with dull, leaden coats when the day broke and the early risers were filled with apprehension. How clear, a glance would show, of the murky mass of rain clouds that loomed in other things. And as is of opinion are the training camps this morning see Cornell the Cornell had the edge on the varsity four and freshman races. The course, the last, however, was in doubt, courtesy were the air of quiet confidence that typify Courtney's men and the desire to make a specific statement.

We have a likely looking crew of varsity men as they appear to be to-day, if they don't live up to what the records show they've been doing and I'll be sadly disappointed, he said.

Ellis Ward, Pennsylvania coach, simply said: "Keep your eye on the Penn's eight and don't overlook our other two crews."

Jim Rice of Columbia would say nothing, but Dunn was not afraid to say Science around the light bone camp that bore out the stories of new hard trial work, pulled off by the New Yorkers.

Hugh Leigh, the Syracuse coach, when asked what the chances were for the Saltine City oarsmen, replied: "We are going to win if hard work is going to finish in every event, and the crew or crews that beat us will at least know that they've been in the race."

Wisconsin's hope apparently centred in the freshman crew. The Westerners were looked upon as having no possible chance in either the varsity eight or four events, but many of the sharps predicted that their youngsters would finish either one or two in the freshman race.

Course Well Policed.

Preparations were made to police the course more carefully than ever before had been done. The revenue cutters Manhattan and Calumet and the big government derelict destroyer Seneca lined up this morning to keep the swarm of pleasure craft away over on the easterly side of the river, while the crews were being trailed along the west shore.

The program comprising three races is as follows:

FIRST RACE.

4:00 P. M.—University four-oared shells, without coxswains, two miles. Lagging one mile north of Lafayette Bridge and finishing one mile south of the bridge.
Trophy: The Kennedy challenge trophy cup, presented in 1869, by Davidson Kennedy, Pennsylvania, to be held by the crew for one year. Present holder of the trophy, Cornell.
Course positions: 1, Syracuse; 2, Cornell; 3, Pennsylvania; 4, Columbia. Wisconsin has no entry in this race.

SECOND RACE.

4:40 P. M.—Freshman eight-oared shells, two miles, same course as first race.
Trophy: The stewards' cup, presented in 1909 by a graduate of Columbia, to be held by the winner for one year. Present holder of trophy, Cornell.
Course positions: 1, Cornell; 2, Columbia; 3, Wisconsin; 4, Syracuse; 5, Pennsylvania.

THIRD RACE.

5:30 P. M.—University eight-oared shells, two miles, over full course.
Trophy: The varsity challenge cup, presented in 1878 by Dr. Louis J. Seaman, Cornell, to be held by the winner for one year. Present holder of trophy, Cornell.
Course positions: 1, Pennsylvania; 2, Columbia; 3, Syracuse; 4, Cornell; 5, Wisconsin.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—It had been tough going for the Rustlers here on this trip, but Tenney swore by the shades of old Billy Penn to-day that he was going out for Dooin's scalp this afternoon, even if he had to put dope in the Phillies' water bucket. So far not a win on this trip, and yesterday a defeat the worst of all.

The Rustlers won't be at all sorry to get away. They are due in New York to-morrow to add a few more beatings to Mr Brush's string. But grounds, and that will be some days on. Besides there is a chance that the rain monies may give the Giants a race Brush can't afford to run off with a game before McGraw can restore souls to his forces. It is too optimistic to hope for such things on that, they generally happen that way, to the home team, when he all rights therefore should root on the home Big pole.

Still a small crowd saw the slaughter yesterday. Errors and the utter inability to hit Alexander were the causes to be assigned for the smothering. Hendrix started at the pain of five runs before Ferguson started out to do the trifling and they grouped his most indomitable. Tenney put Buster Brown in in the fifth, till the damage had been done.

One more game with the World's Champs to-day and, thank goodness, the world Mackmen will be on the west coast here. So far the present series has been a tie, the double-ender which was Boston snatched on Friday morning and Chief Bender keep us from getting the short end. He will likely be the selection for this afternoon unless Mack wants to try out Jack Coombs or Eddie Plank ready at last to see if they can shake the jinx which has pursued them to a finish Friday. The long Mr Plank was always a hard customer for Boston's crack team and if he gets his stuff to-day and is right the Sox will have their work cut out for them to-day.

If Patsy can shape the combination together in long before the Highlanders, who come to-morrow for a three game series. The Yankees landed in long before the Senators yesterday and are feeling pretty cocky from the series just won. But to-morrow is a new game, if in doubt try and find out. If you can even bet that they won't, send deep all three games.

Cicotte heaved a nice game yesterday up to the ninth, only to see the Athletics get on to him. Until then he had worked fine and all his good work was done in the face of all sorts of discouragement and was an uphill job after the fourth inning. Chet Walker's inexperience at the end of the battle to the Athletics' favor. He was sent in for pinch hitter and he hit only four balls. On the fourth Strunk stole second, big to Wagner, who stepped in and shot it to first for a out.

Wagner's absence in the field was one of the sort which warrant the observation that the viewer at baseball knows little. Even though the season is nearly half over the first error made in an every inning Hoken had been picked open his inning with the first ball hit of the contest, a sweet single to centre. He then stole second. Strunk was the Gloucester boy, really startled him in third. Murphy tapped a slow one to Wagner, who made a long throw to the plate to catch Baker whose run resulted. Murphy also had much trouble with Barry at first. The second one to Wagner was fielded long enough to let Barry get to first, although he managed to field the ball in third. It was left to second on the play and a moment later Thomas popped over the plate with another run when Lapp was forced at second.

Krause had a bad inning in the sixth and the Red Sox tied up the score. Hooper walked Gardner and Speaker hit safely to right. Lewis tried to catch Gardner at home at the first base runner to third. Lapp and Speaker took second. Yerkes fanned, Wagner was passed to first and Engel popped to Barry, retiring the side and registered.

The Athletics have been passing pitchers on Huntington avenue ever since they started their long string of victories. When Krause was taken down, Dumas, Krause and Lord took care of eight in eight successive innings that they pitched, but it was enough to win the game.

Notes Gathered Between Innings

A neat 6,000 faithful huge took fences on him and a foolish breeze to see the doubles.

The only mishap charged against the Athletics was the bad throw made by Thomas when he tried to nail Gardner at second in the fourth inning.

That was some catch Lewis pulled off in the tenth when Danny Murphy poled the ball to left.

The Yankee series is to be after luck, I once still. Jack was seat in to whole the side off the mound in the 8th to a half on the 1st base and start something.

He lost he could do way to lift a feather to speak.

He put was all there, Jeff, with a heart of oak, left-hand curves but in short right. It took some pitching to get it.

Ford handed upon the doings in the fifth with a goose egg in big all was started. Strunk got him to third on a sacrifice, and Chief walking and Lapolte made Baker lay down a weak one to the pitcher's box. Lapolte ambushed for Mr Cicotte.

The Athletics made a bid for a score in the opening inning. After one was out, Cicotte walked both Strunk and Collins. He forced Collins, but Strunk pocketed his frame on third. He and Baker tried to steal second and Lapolte made a throw on Kleinow's throw to Wagner and Heinie's lightning return. Fast work. Also will gets from the bags.

The Tigers were there too, yesterday, nabbing a game from the White Sox. It's getting to be a regular heart disease race that Tigers and Chaps are making of it. If a pole could be made of the fans who infest the Red Sox lot, it's a dog sho that they are pulling for the Mackmen to copp the pennant. The fans remember which American League team gave the better account of itself in the World's series.

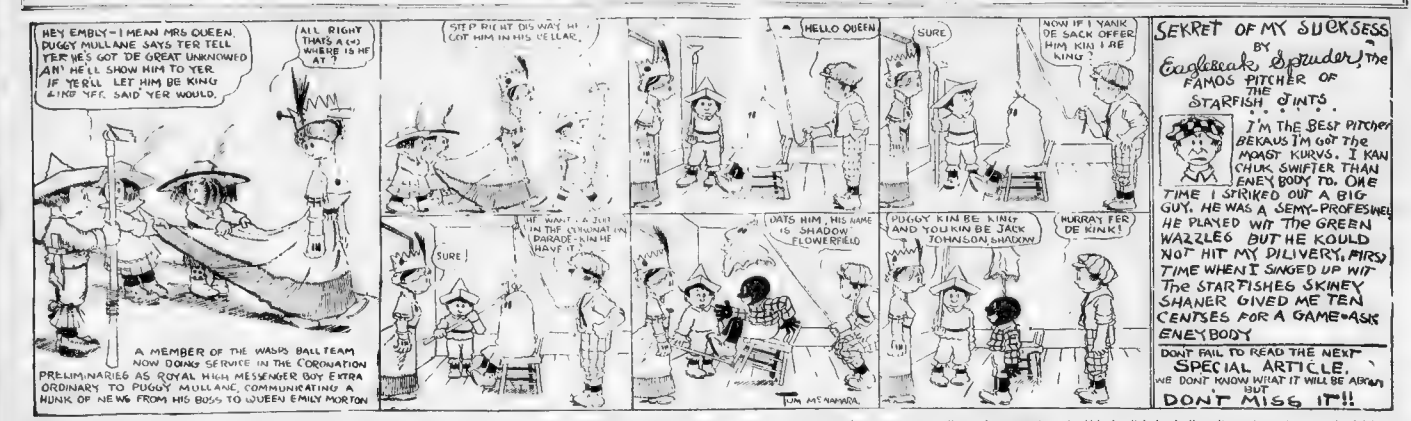
"Malgumated" Coronation Time Draws Nearer



Preparations for the big show in the Young American Magnumated Coronation are going along great.

A King was chosen yesterday by Queen Emily Morton. The name of the new King is "Pugger" Mullane, the well known kid ere not to be confounded by the manager and agent of the Washo Wegetable Company, who has been playing the Starfish Giants.

The mysterious "Unknowed" has been the real sensation of the great baseball championship series, which is coming to an end as the Coronation is drawing near. It seems to be that after being King would be pretty hard for a fellow like "Pugger" to get to work as a baseball player. He is a pretty wise kid though, and knows what he is doing.

The mystery of the "Great Unknowed" has been cleared up at last. The "Great Unknowed" simply had a uniform which will precede the coronation proper by some nine cracking kids around the head now and then. Not many kids in the league are gifted for the job, though as Jack Johnson and Shadow Flowerfield has the position all but cinched.

The coronation festivities are going along at full speed now. Queen Emily Morton is still busy making a hair net for the Queen. It is almost all finished now except for the part lacking being the part where they will tack on the "Skinny" Johnson than King. Not many kids in the league are gifted for the job, though as in the paper for an old baby buggy to make a chariot; that's all there is to it.

The Queen must have a chariot; that's all the only loose baby buggy around the neighborhood has been used. It was a present from Mr. Nelson are not particularly pretty good robbie, but it had only three wheels.

"Eaglebeak" Sprader's special article appears in this issue. We have printed it exactly as the artist handed it to us. "Shrimp" Flynn, who wrote yesterday's article, says he is going to be a war correspondent when he grows up.

There is no telling what the special article will be about. "Blinky" Mesmith the league's well-known grounds keeper, is down on the books to write it. We have not seen him since last Thurs day. DONT MISS IT!!

Beneath the surface of the Sea Claude forces Desperate Desmond to walk the cable. Helpless in the grasp of our hero, Desmond yet cries "Curses!" and says that he will triumph in the end. Although Desmond is a despised villain, we must admire his courage.

Aboard the Bolivar they are aware of Alvarado leader's peril, and while Rosamond watches the approach of the rescuing fleet the anchor is let go in the hope of dropping it upon Claude. Poor Claude! It is a terrible thing to step an anchor with one's head.

Up comes the anchor, bringing with it the cable, and on the cable are Claude and Desmond. "Ha! Ha!" mutters Desmond, as ever. His only fear now is the rescuing one of the Bolivars points a gun at our navy, and he has formed a plan to delay pursuit. With an air of triumph he is just an hopeful as his black-hearted rival ever was.

With Claude and Rosamond in irons, the ship is steering among the rocks, when as he prepares to drop the weight which will cut the Desmond cable, a frightful shock arrests their little craft, will tear Claude to pieces. Our hero's only chance is to pierce the villain! Perhaps there is. To-morrow's pictures may show one.

Fortune Telling--Good and Bad

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

(Copyright, 1911, by American-Journal-Examiner. Great Britain Rights Reserved.)

NAY, seer, I do not doubt thy mystic lore,
Nor question that the tenor of my life,
Past, present and the future, is revealed
There in my horoscope. I do believe
That you dead moon compels the haughty seas
To ebb and flow, and that my natal star
Blends like a stern-browed sentinel in space
And challenges events; nor lets one grief,
Or joy, or failure, or success, pass on
To mar or bless my earthly lot, until
It proves its Karmic right to come to me.

All this I grant, but more than this I know!
Before the solar systems were conceived,
When nothing was but the unnamable,
My spirit lived, an atom of the Cause,
Through countless ages and in many forms
It has existed ere it entered in
This human frame to serve to little day
Upon the earth. The desirless Me of me,
The spark from that great all-creative fire
Is part of that eternal source called God,
And mightier than the universe.

Why he
Who knows, and knowing, never once forgets
The pedigree, decline of his own soul,
Can conquer, shape and govern destiny
And use vast space as I were a board for chess
With stars for pieces; can change his horoscope
To suit his will; turn failure to success,
And from preordained sorrows, harvest joy.

There is no puny planet, sun or moon
Or sodiacal sign which can control
The God in us! If we bring God to bear
Upon events, we mold them to our wish,
'Tis when the infinite 'neath the finite gropes
That men are governed by their horoscopes.

ALL through the Orient, in every land, the fortune teller is in the foreground. He is as numerous as the Syrian peddlers at seashore resorts in America.

In most of the religious temples of Japan, China, India and Java the priests combine fortune telling with their religious duties. In every large temple there are various "side shows" where the fortune teller hangs his sign and in the courts leading to these temples on fete, holy or festival days the palmist, the astrologer and the soothsayer are to be encountered. All seem to do a thriving business.

Every hotel has its visiting palmist, or psychic—not only one, but several, as a rule.

The barber, the manicure, the pedicure, the masseuse, are surely to be found. The fortune teller always.

In Java the astrologer is consulted on all important matters.

The Japanese are Mohammedans, and circumcision is a part of their religious ceremonies. Before this ceremony takes place the astrologer selects a propitious time.

In Ceylon I talked with a Parsee merchant who had traveled three times about the world and visited many remote places. He spoke several languages, and was a man well past the half-century mark. He said palmistry and astrology were great sciences; and for both he felt respect and reverence. He frequently consulted his horoscope in his business affairs, and he found his knowledge of palmistry valuable as well.

A Matter of Raids

Coming back from these lands, one of the first items which caught my eye in an American newspaper was the raid made upon the people engaged in "occult" business in New York.

It sometimes seems that when the police find life a little dull and monotonous they make a raid on fortune tellers. Without doubt this class of people needs supervision.

We all know that the fortune teller's sign sometimes covers a multitude of sins.

So does the sign of the masseur and the manicure; but that does not justify a wholesale slaughter of all people engaged in these occupations, nor does it justify dragging them all into court to prove their respectability.

The business of predicting the future for other people is overdone. It brings disaster in its train, as a rule. It cast Daniel into the lions' den, even though he escaped death by being an animal tamer.

No one of us has a moral right to try and peer into the future, and much less have we the right to try and peer into another's future. And yet there is an air sin so universally committed as this; and the curiosity of the race regarding the future has been the demand that created the continual supply of fortune tellers.

There is a fascination in it which few people are strong enough to resist; at one time or another in life almost every man and woman yields to the temptation of consulting a fortune teller of some order.

Palmistry, astrology and phrenology are, by the unthinking or ignorant, frequently classed with fortune telling. But they are all dignified sciences, based on a solid foundation of religious philosophy. Man is what he has made himself through countless ages by his thoughts and acts. The spiritual essence which is the real man began to take on material form, and it has been reincarnated over and over, and each one of us to-day represents the sum total of former lives.

The shape of our heads, the lines of our hands, all are a cipher, telling the story of past and present, and indicating what the immediate future will be, unless we change it by will and work, for good or ill. The horoscopes are another code, telling the same story in another way.

There lies a great field for usefulness and influence for good in these professions, if those who follow them have the right understanding of life.

The great mistake made by many palmists and astrologers lies in giving the impression that the hand and the horoscope cannot be changed.

Gerrolde de Rielski, an astrologer of Boston, writes most earnestly on that subject in the Occult Review. She says:

"Rules His Stars"

"The mistake has been—in spite of the old maxim so often quoted, that 'a wise man rules his stars'—that people observe them"—that astrologers interpret the evil aspects as 'ruling' a life or an epoch, and thus fail to point out the means of overcoming possibility of modifying or overcoming those aspects, or of giving any suggestions as to how this overcoming is to be accomplished. Moreover, they often seem not to recognize the fact that the aspects of the planets more than the nature of the planets, indicate the law of life, as it is written at birth or at an epoch, and that these aspects are the result of character, and as a result of character can be changed by an effort of will consciously directed.

"The planets may indicate the law of life, but they do not necessarily compel the fulfilling of that law. Their influences aid us to know that law and its precise nature, and with the right knowledge we can set up counter vibrations within ourselves to change the character of events; so it is character one must control or change if one would control the nature of circumstances.

"It would make my letter too long were I to give my views on heredity and the occult side of the science of the stars, but in closing I may say that in my opinion heredity is wholly of the soul, which is freighted with the law of its own making, as it seeks earth conditions, or as the period is ripe for its birth into earth life, being drawn into family and conditions that will best suit it to fulfill that law.

"It is this law that is indicated by the positions of signs and planets when the soul is conceived and born—if it has ripened, some violent aspects will record it, and if it is to be murdered, this also will be shown; but I hold in either or both cases the law of the birth may be changed, if it be known, and the parents will seek to overcome in the child its own imbalance, and so guide it and guard it into a self-control of the attributes of danger. Or in later life knowledge and the desire to overcome will give the power to do so, if this is not so, then how is the great Law of Perfection to be accomplished?

"This is the high and noble mission for the astrologer to take and for the student of the sciences to understand.

Greater Than Horoscope

Man is greater than his horoscope or his palm. He can overcome or change whatever events may be foreshown, if he uses all the God power within himself to that purpose.

Palmistry and astrology delineate character. Character makes destiny. If we change our characters we change our destiny.

To change our characters, it is necessary for us to know ourselves and those tendencies which need special attendance and guidance; then, knowing, to give that attention and guidance by a persistent course of mental and spiritual training, until we stand masters of our own destinies, controllers of our stars.

It seems scarcely just that men and women who have made a thorough and profound study of an occult science and who regard it reverently should be classed with the rabble of "fortune tellers" and stand in danger of being dragged to the police courts in times of the annual raid upon the occult professions. Ought not your guardians of morals to use a little discretion in these matters?

The De Bercy Affair

TO DAY'S INSTALMENT
By GORDON HOLMES
Copyright, 1910, by Edward J. Clode

PART TWO—(Continued)

"ROSE DE BERCY was condemned, and my sweet Pauline, alas! was deputed to be her executioner," he said. "We had waited long for the hour, and the dagger was ready, though I was distracted by my sister's counsel. Then came an urgent letter from St. Petersburg that the traitress was reprieved until a certain list found among her papers was checked—"

"Found?" questioned Winter.

"By Pauline," said Janoc.

"Ah, stolen?"

Janoc brushed aside the substituted word as a quibble.

"Conceive my horror when I heard of the murder!" he cried with hands flung wide and eyes that rolled. "I was sure that Pauline had mistaken the instructions—"

"Where is the St. Petersburg letter?" broke in Furneaux.

"Spirits!" You will scarcely credit, it was taken from me by a man—a fiendish agent he must have been—one night in the Fraternal Club, Oxford—"

"Clarke, produce it," said Furneaux, grinding.

Clarke flushed, grew white, nervously thumbed some papers in his pocketbook and handed to Winter the letter which contained: "St. Petersburg says" " and ended: "You will see to it that she to whose hands vengeance has been intrusted, shall fall on the 3d."

Winter read, and frowned. Furneaux, too, read.

"The 3d," he muttered. "Just Heaven, what a fatal date to her!"

"What was I to think?" continued Janoc. "Antonio shared my view. He met Pauline at the Exhibition, and was ready, if necessary, to vouch for her presence there at the time Rose de Bercy went to her reckoning; but he is not in the limelight—he had heard of the plot from another."

"Yet he, and the rest of your gang, were prepared to let Mr. Osborne hang for this crime," said Winter, surveying the perspirator with a condemning eye. But his menace or scorn was alike to Janoc, who threw out his arms again.

"Cre nom!" he cried, "why not? Is he not a rich bourgeois like the rest? He and his class have crushed us without mercy for many a century. What matter if he were hanged by mistake? He could be spared—my Pauline could not. He is merely a rich one, my Pauline is a martyr to the cause!"

Meant to Kill

"Listen to me, Janoc," said Winter fiercely. "Spout what rubbish you please in your rotten club, but if ever you dare again to plot—even to plot, mind you—any sort of crime against life or property in this free country, I shall crush you like a beetle—like a beetle, do you hear, you wretched—leave!—get out!"

"Monsieur, my sister?"

"Wait outside there till she comes. Then leave England, the pair of you, or you will try what hard labor in a British prison can do for your theories."

Janoc bowed.

"Monsieur," he said, "a prison has made me what I am."

Pauline was candid as her brother. She had, in fanatical misunderstood the reprieve given to her mistress, and meant to kill her on the night of the 3d. The visit to the Exhibition was of her own contriving. She had got rid of her English acquaintance, the cook, very easily after meeting Antonio by appointment.

Then she left him, without giving a reason, and hurried back to the mansion, where, owing to her intimate knowledge of the internal arrangements she counted on entering and leaving the fat unseen. She did actually succeed in her mission, but found Rose de Bercy long dead.

On the floor, close to the body, was a dagger, and she had no doubt whatever that her brother had acted in her stead, so she picked up the weapon, secreted it with the dagger given her in readiness for the crime, and took the first opportunity of hiding herself, lest the mere fact that Janoc was seen in her company should draw suspicion towards him.

"Ah, but the lace? What of the piece of blood-stained lace?" demanded Furneaux.

"I wished to make sure, monsieur," was the astounding reply. "Had she not been dead, but merely wounded, I—Eh, then! I tore her dress open, in order to feel if her heart was beating, and the bit of lace remained in my hand."

"I was so excited that I hardly knew what I was doing. I took it away. After wards, when Antonio said that the police were cooling in their chase of Osborne, I gave it to him; he told me he could use it to good effect."

"Whew!" breathed Winter. "You're a pretty lot of cutthroats, I must say. Why did you keep the daggers and the dirty sweet meats?"

"The knife that rid us of a traitress was sacred. I thought the dirty dish might be useful in the—to our friends."

"Yet you gave it to Mr. Clarke without any demur?"

Was Afraid of Clarke

"The girl shot a look at Clarke in which fright was mingled with hatred.

"He—he—I was afraid of him," she stammered.

Winter opened the door.

"There is your brother," he said. "Be off, both of you. Take my advice and leave England to-night."

They went forth, hand in hand, in no wise cast down by the loathing they had inspired. Clarke looked far more miserable than they, and their going he had lost the prize of his life.

"Now for Osborne," whispered Furneaux as they came to me, Winter. Trust me implicitly for five minutes—that is all."

Osborne was brought in by the station police, and Winter himself lodged the usual record without as unnecessary word the name of the Prime Minister or the Archbishop of Canterbury on any charge preferred against either by a responsible member of the force. The young American was calm now, completely self-possessed, disdainful of any lemonlay that might be inflicted on him. He did not even glance at Furneaux, but nodded to Winter.

"Your assurances are seemingly of little value," he said coldly.

"Mr. Winter is quite blameless," snapped Furneaux, obviously nettled by the implied reproof. "Please attend to me, Mr. Osborne—this affair rests wholly between you and me. Leave now, for the first time, I imagine, that Rose de Bercy was my wife."

Osborne did truly start at hearing that remarkable statement. Clarke's mouth literally fell open; even the uniformed inspector was stirred, and began to pare a pencil pro with a phenomenally sharp knife this being the only sign of excitement he had ever been known to exhibit.

"Yes, unhappily for her and me, we were married in Paris soon after she ran away from home," said Furneaux. "I thought—we should be happy. She had rare qualities, Mr. Osborne, perhaps you discovered some of them, and they fascinated you as they fascinated me."

"But—she! had others, which I learnt to my sorrow, while you were absent. I cannot explain further at this moment. I have only to say that you are as free from the guilt of her death as I am."

Furneaux's Reasons.

Winter alone was conscious of a quaver note in the little man's voice as he dwelt on the comparison. He seemed to be searching for some simile of wildest improbability and to have hit upon himself as supplying it.

But Osborne was in no mood for the wilderness. He cared absolutely nothing about present or future while the horrible past still held the pall it had thrown on his prospects of bliss with Rosalind.

"In that event, one might ask why I am here," he said quietly. "Not that I am concerned in the solving of the riddle You have done your worst, Mr. Furneaux. You can inflict no deeper injury on me. If you have any other vile purpose to serve by telling me these things, by all means go right ahead."

Furneaux's eyes glinted, and his wizened cheeks showed some token of color, but he kept his voice marvelously under control.

"In time you will come to thank me, Mr. Osborne" he said. "To-day you are bitter, and I am not surprised at it; but you could never have been happy in your new home with Miss Rosalind Marsh while the shadow of suspicion clung to you.

"Please do not forget that the world believes you killed Rose de Bercy. If you walked forth now into Regent street, and the word went around that you were there, a thousand people would mob you in a minute, while ten thousand would be prepared to lynch you within ten minutes."

"I have settled with you, Furneaux, with others, too, and now I am sorry—to a certain extent. But in this case I was at once detective and judge and executioner. If you wanted transferred your love from the dead woman to the living one, I cared not a straw what you suffered or how much you were punished.

"That phase has passed. Twice you have justified yourself. Within twenty four hours you will be free to marry Miss Marsh, because your name will have lost the smirch now pinned on it, while your promise to Hyda Prout will be absolved.

"But for twenty-four hours you must remain here apparently a prisoner, in reality as much at liberty as any man in London. Less, if I know my words—for at last wonder and hope were dawning in Osborne's eyes—my chief, Mr. Winter, will tell you that I have never spoken in this manner without making good what I have said—never, I repeat.

"If I could spare you the necessity of passing a night in a cell I would do so; but I cannot. You are the decoy duck for the wild creature that I mean to lay by the heels before another day has closed. Make yourself as comfortable as possible—the inspector will see to that—dog, I must keep you here, a prisoner in all outward semblance.

"Are you willing?"

To Be Continued To-morrow

Hubby's Outbursts

MORE men are driven out of their homes by ugliness than by laughter, and to imagine because a man gives way to an outburst of temper he has necessarily ceased to love his wife is silly and irrational, for it is merely the action of a safety valve, and after all superfluous steam has escaped he will be as contented as possible.

Only remember that all men are martyrs to some grievance or other, and after a particularly violent outburst it is wiser not to be too incisive in your reminders of the fact that he had forgotten his manners a few hours previously.

Man is a creature of habit. It is a mistake to imagine, as many people do, that he is an erratic, unstable animal, for he is quite the reverse. Marriage is also a habit—it is this that keeps people together very often after romance and passion have died out, and is the reason why widowers and widowers seldom remain long in single blessedness. Therefore, if one particular woman once makes herself into a habit she need have no fear of being superseded for more than a few hours, if at all, by any other woman. So many women make the mistake of trying to force their mankind along the route that appeals to themselves, thereby making them most uncomfortable, and a man who is uncomfortable soon finds some place where he can follow his own inclinations, whether it be club, public house, or some other woman.

He comes home tired and snappish—he grimbles because his shirt is badly ironed, because some one has put his socks into the drawer held sacred to collars, because the fish is underdone, and the coffee weak and muddy. After he has grumbled enough, he will subside into a chair behind a newspaper, and probably go to sleep.

Or he wakes up in the morning with a liver, or finds a letter from his bank telling him that his account is overdrawn. Instead of bearing either misfortune with the manly fortitude which, according to tradition, he should naturally be expected to display, in nine cases out of ten he proceeds to vent his annoyance on everything animate or inanimate which crosses his path. If only women were philosophical enough to realize that their whole volcanic outburst is only a harmless vent for overcharged feelings, they would bear it with more equanimity.

Anyway, tears are always a mistake—they may be an effective weapon before marriage; afterward, instead of wiping them tenderly away, the average husband says: "Oh, for goodness sake don't make a scene," and goes off to his office till the storm is blown over.

The Man Who Married His Housekeeper

By ADA PATTERSON

THERE have been many explanations because a man, author and globe girdler in his own right, the right of enlightenment, and son of the former ambassador to France, by heredity, has married his housekeeper. But since the mysterious has subsided we must admit that he did a natural thing in a natural way.

A man, from the time he wears his first high boots and his color changes, is mightily concerned about his personal comfort. After he is forty that personal comfort becomes a fetish. It have the mood of a man who is in both states, but after a man is forty his heart becomes leathery. These facts account for million aires wedding their housekeepers or cooks.

The American bridegroom who has caused so much speculation by marrying his English housekeeper, is forty-six. His bride is said to be his equal in age, even though there may be a deficit in other directions. What is also known accurately about is that she is an excellent housekeeper. In that, since he is a literary man—the negro commandment described a willing convention nail when she said they were a literary lot—she is superlative with his person.

Many Good Reasons

There are many satisfying reasons why a man has over all other mooing swains that he knows whether she keeps house well, other men guess it. The women who have roamed them may claim the credit for the neat homes in which their suitors and theirs, but the thoughtful man may suspect that the mother or sister or servant in the background may have given two helping hands.

He knows as no other can know whether her temper is normal or whether it rises above the degree. He has the immense benefit of knowing her over the coffee cups in the morning, the time when persons bring out the worn signals of the day's mental weather.

There is, in paying court to his housekeeper, an immense incentive to the lazy man. He is, in a sense, afloat. She is beneath his roof, within reach of his hand. There are no pilgrimages to other towns or to distant parts of the same town. A man can stay at his own fireside, do his wooing without removing his smoking jacket or even, if his ardor should thaw by he greatly interfered with, or taking his cigar or pipe from between his teeth. He needn't go out on a cold afternoon or a stormy evening. He need not wear under guard of a menacing bull terrier, or in conversation with a proxy papa, while the object of his matrimonial interest is dressing for a drive. He can play a comfortable game of solitaire on the table in his own dining room, or can swap fish stories with a neighbor over his own back fence, in absolute tranquility of soul.

There is to the busy man, too, the advantage of the "odd moments" courtship. There is no lost time. A significant smile or two over the dinner table while he probes the roast, a hand pressure as she passes him his coffee, a "Why not stay on at the old place as Mrs. Blank?" after dinner and it is done. There is no response. A man's housekeeper is pretty sure to marry him if he says her. There are none of the idiotic ear fever of waiting for the delayed letter, no worrying about what she may mean when she said this or that. She is the living model of his wishes and he can ask her without any interrogation moments of torment. There is small chance of misunderstandings, for there is always the chance for remunderstanding. The engine of true love for your own housekeeper runs smooth, for the cogs in the worn and comfortable channels of propinquity.

Happiness in Prospect

The prospects of happy marriages are greater with a man's housekeeper. There is less likelihood of a host of matrimonial surprises. She can't surprise him with a bad temper, because he already knows whether it is bad, medium or good. He knows whether she is fussy, for they have already been through the common anxieties of whether the cat has been put out, the doors locked and the windows fastened. The happiness will not be shipwrecked upon the present concern whether the buttons have been sewed on his shirt, or whether the butcher's bills are too large. Those questions have been discussed, have been settled, and their ghosts are not liable to walk at or after their marriage supper.

The man who marries his housekeeper gets what he wants. The man who marries a pink and white girl, while he is in the throes of courtship, gets the Aroma of life, does not. The middle-aged marriage is the marriage of reason. At least it is the marriage for comfort and that is what the man who marries his housekeeper wants and gets.

Glass Shelves

GLASS is an ideal shelving for a kitchen, and can be put in easily so easily. If this is on slate paint the shelves white and give a coat of enamel. This is easily washed and does away with the necessity of papers.

The kitchen cupboard should never be permitted to get untidy, and should be scrubbed out at least every fortnight; the floor shelves oftener.

The range and gas stove quickly show lack of attention. Polish once or twice a week, and in the intervals wipe off frequently with newspaper to absorb grease. A gas stove should have the parts removed and boiled every few days, and the burners should be kept clear with a fine wire or brush.

RULE OF CHURCH MUST BE ENFORCED, DECLARES BISHOP WALSH IN LETTER

In a first statement that has been made public, since the issuance of an interdict some time ago, by the Bishop of Portland, Me., against a large number of French Canadians in Maine, who were interdicted as a result of their refusal for the dissolution of the "corporation sole," whereby Bishop Louis S. Walsh's complete control of the $10,000,000 of the church property in Maine was to be vested, the Bishop has issued a letter to the clergy of the diocese, in which is given the church's side of the case.

The French Canadians in Maine denied the Bishop, by holding a convention, to discuss the case. There is bitter feeling among them over the interdict, forbidding a requiem mass to be sun over Dr. Fortier, one of their leaders. The full letter follows:

The Bishop's letter follows.

Dear Holy Father:

Holy Scripture tells us "There is a time for silence and a time for speech." My duty to the church now compels me to speak and publish a true statement of fact in regard to the recent interdict against six laymen in the diocese of Portland, because so many misstatements, and below public misinterpretations have appeared in several sources, some no doubt unintentions, others plainly false and malicious.

Let it be distinctly said at once that there was no publicity discussed in this matter from any point of view, and that the persons thus judged and censured are not aware of any word or act of open rebellion that was personally offensive to him, and none that we have no personal ill-feeling whatever.

The Catholic church authority, however, has been and is now engaged in a struggle of the most momentous character, and is simply a question of maintaining law, order, authority, dignity and harmony within the Catholic church.

1. The notification of the decree of May 8, 1911, by which I am signing the names of the parties it reads: "The interdict has been decreed because of the grave public scandal given by their various words and acts in a recent attack on the Catholic hierarchy, church property and church law in the diocese of Portland." That the interdict has been duly made known to them and will hold until due reparation has been made."

Interdict Approved by Consultors

2. An interdict is one of the severest penalties which the spiritual penalties of the church as a religious society and may be decreed by a legitimate authority for a grave public scandal. It is not an excommunication or expulsion from the church, but a privation of certain rights and privileges in the hope and for the purpose of securing reparation and firm purpose of amendment; in a word, it is a temporary suspension of public and private clergy rights, and, in the present case, deprives the parties of the use of the sacraments of the church and of Christian burial.

3. The interdict, long and fully considered by the bishop and upon the advice of the diocesan board of consultors, was issued early in April and soon after published in person by a priest delegated for that purpose, in the form and in the public manner set and do their duty as Catholics. It was published in the city of the scene of the grave scandal given by their various words and acts in a recent attack on the Catholic hierarchy church property and church law in the diocese of Portland." That the interdict has been duly made known to them and will hold until due reparation has been made."

2. An interdict is one of the severest penalties which the spiritual penalties of the church as a religious society and may be decreed by a legitimate authority for a grave public scandal. It is not an excommunication or expulsion from the church, but a privation of certain rights and privileges in the hope and for the purpose of securing reparation and firm purpose of amendment; in a word, it is a temporary suspension of public and private clergy rights, and, in the present case, deprives the parties of the use of the sacraments of the church and of Christian burial.

3. The interdict, long and fully considered by the bishop and upon the advice of the diocesan board of consultors, was issued early in April and soon after published in person by a priest delegated for that purpose, in the form and in the public manner set forth by the ritual. The interdict has no right whatever to represent the Catholic church or its doctrines, and who feared that some of their faithful children were being deceived and injured by them.

Reason for Interdict.

4. The words of the decree prove conclusively that the interdict was not imposed because these parties offered a petition to the Legislature, since the right of petition is a constitutional right of every freeborn or adopted citizen of our republic. This point is not in the least necessary. The parties did not have their names on the petition, presented it. Such petitions are, in reality, present it.

Besides, the decree of mortal sinadon and kindly pastoral monition, not a word was said, nor can any one show by the bishop to interfere with such a right. The matter, manner and spirit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] church property and church law in the diocese of Portland" was publicly made by their various words and acts in a recent attack on the Catholic hierarchy, church property and church law." In one of the public features and spirit of the whole affair from the start to the end of the Portland week in 1909 to the day when the decree was issued.

Subversion of Church Constitution.

5. These various words and acts are partly in the bill proposed as a substitute for the corporation sole; several sections of this bill are in open subversion of the constitution of the church, in open defiance of the canons of the church and opposed to the laws of the diocese, the would mean practical control and perhaps confusion of church property by laymen, (c) would disrupt unity and order in every respectable educated Catholic at all families with the title Catholicity of Rome, Baltimore or Quebec, (e) in one word, was a subversion of the fundamental principles of the church and the constitution of the church affairs.

This is the judgment not only of the Bishop of Portland and many other bishops, but examination by every honest man who read the bill and tried to analyze its meaning. The above words and acts were also flagrant in the speeches and public utterances of his followers in a few places, notably Biddeford, and in newspapers before, during and after the legislative session. Partly again, in the dark and deceitful methods of obtaining signatures to petitions among the people who often did not know the full meaning of what they were doing. Partly because the so-called "committee of the whole" formed by its sub-committee assumed a new role and took unto itself the right to refuse life in appearing before the Legislature, and—

Told to Read Papers.

Members of the Executive Committee of the French-American Catholics of the State of Maine:

Partly because of the open and veiled threats of taking vengeance upon all persons who opposed the petition. Partly because it was said by many in the open declaration, after their overwhelming defeat in the Legislature, that they would continue all the same battle as in the past and to get the Catholic Church in Maine. Partly because the persons, [illegible] according to many selfish ends and political calculations of the ephemeral moment and more evident. If any one wishes to be personally convinced of these facts and at the same time is not easily scandalized, let him simply read the files of the two French-Canadian papers, one of Biddeford and one of Lewiston, during the last few years and he will have only one opinion about their methods, language and spirit which no Catholic, worthy of the name, can fail to condemn and no honest or truthful person will ever approve.

6. Every honorable personal and official method was used by the Bishop before the bill was presented and since that time to bring the petitioners to a Catholic appreciation of things; they were warned about the anti-Catholic spirit of the entire affair and its consequences; priests and laymen used their influence to show them the error of their ways; but all efforts were fruitless and the interdict was finally issued by the Bishop as a solemn duty of his office and supreme responsible pastor of the Catholic church in the diocese of Portland. The Bishop is always a mother, with open arms ever ready to receive her erring children, however asks more than is necessary and merciful in regard to for any scandal given, but does not and cannot pardon without sorrow for the past and a firm purpose of amendment.

The only question now is to no way alleged grievances of the French-Canadian people or societies. It is simply a permissive title for holding property, one already approved by the council of Baltimore, by Rome and adopted by a great many states and dioceses. The power and freedom of a Bishop and his just as great under other legal titles, and in fact far greater under the present title, while the simplicity of form and security both of vested rights and of church property under the title of corporation sole are well regarded by any other title far proposed.

Increases Publicity.

The publicity of this affair has been greatly increased by the recent meeting at Biddeford and by the odd circumstances connected with the death of the late Dr. Fortier, and under both these topics very misleading matter has appeared. The convention, so called, at Biddeford has been ended under the absolute control of five out of the six men interdicted and their continuance in office, probably because no one else saved or dared to take the office, and for the issue clear, simple and very easy to meet. NEW YORK, June 27.—Irishmen, as a rule, make good policemen, according to a statement made by Police Commissioner Waldo in a letter which he wrote to an Irishman in Ireland who desires to become a member of the New York force. The application came from Patrick Finn, dated Ardkeenagh, Roscommon, Ireland.

HEAVY ORDERS PUT STEEL UP

NEW YORK, June 27.—Although profit taking reduced the general advance in the stock market, which had followed the decision legalizing the Harriman merger, Southern and Union Pacific were again strong today, the former holding up ¼ and the latter ⅜, at the opening. United States Steel was featured by its strength, opening ¼ above Monday's close and showing good demand. This was attributed to reports of heavy orders and news of crop conditions. A number of bonus issues were purchased, ready to move in sympathy with the influence of the market. Among the stocks opening without price change were Southern Railway, amalgamated Copper, Allied Iron Smelting & Refining, Erie common and 1st Erie preferred continued to show strength, the initial upturn being ⅜. Reading was up ¼. The New York Transit situation gave B. R. T. an opthalmic impetus, a number of issues gain ¼ to ⅜.

The tone in the first few minutes of trading was irregular, due to the selling of stocks seeking profits from the legislative curb market, which opened in a lower degree, accompanied by a lack of buying sympathetically with the exchange. Americans in the London market were steady, although trading was narrow.

DOCKMEN'S STRIKE TIES UP SHIPPING

LONDON, June 27.—Shipping in northern ports is at a standstill as a result of the strike of the dockmen, who refuse to handle freight from vessels owned by the Shipowners' Federation. The dockmen are reinforced by striking sailors, and the jurisdiction of Havelock Wilson of the international union that all the ports of Great Britain will be tied up. Other steamship lines are not made seemed nearer fulfillment to-day than at any time since the marine troubles began. Liverpool and London companies are affected, the transatlantic companies having already settled.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

State Street, which not so very long ago was cautious and eager to have the Sherman act wiped off the statute books, is taking an entirely different view of this subject nowadays. In fact, the street is beginning to swear by it. All of the decisions rendered upon this statute are regarded in the financial and speculative district as eminently sensible.

Although confidence of investors in the government is returning, it has not yet reached the stage of a few years ago. Buying of bonds in anticipation of dividend and interest payments is therefore not as large as then. There is a disposition by investors to await the actual receipt of their checks before reinvesting the money.

The steel companies are booking orders at a rapid rate, and all wholesale lines report larger business. The crop situation is growing better daily and the crop killers are finding themselves ignored. A pool believed to be chiefly responsible for the present strength of grain options. As the United States will have considerable grain for export this year, a material rise in the price of wheat will be a bull argument on stocks, for it will put more net than much more money brought into the country.

Norfolk & Western has made a notable advance as a direct result of the Union Pacific decision. It is known that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has a very heavy investment in the property and would like to buy still more of the stock. The Union Pacific decision opens a way for such purchases. Announcement may be expected from time to time of such purchase by the great railroad systems of the country, which have waited for investment or information account.

Selling has been entirely professional and is justified on technical grounds. Considered as selling is indulged in on the theory that the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific merger case settled there is no more question of importance to look forward to.

A brokerage firm points out that the Sherman anti-trust law, in so far as it applies to railroads, is practically a dead letter since the Interstate Commerce Commission has been given new authority. The commission has undertaken to establish the minimum as well as the maximum rate, and by that act makes competition impossible. Wherever there is no competition, it is not important who owns the stock of the railroads are. Therefore, as legal illness is to any one in future stocks as freely as may seem desirable for investment purposes.

Increased confidence on the part of investors in a number of high grade bonds heretofore is being reflected in a better demand for long term railroad and industrial bonds. Investors who became alarmed a year ago by the rapid-fire manner in which the government was attacking the railroads and industrials, and parcelled out their short term notes, are now selling these notes and putting the proceeds back into long term bonds.

The directors of the Scaldsipit Oyster System have declared a dividend of 8 per cent. on the preferred stock, payable July 15 to stock of record June 30.

Those who are selling stocks, and particularly those who bought recently, are overlooking the fact, however, that there is a distinct improvement in business.

$ $ $

Improvement is expected in the demand for industrial bonds, now that the steel trade report is out. Bond dealers are taking advantage of this fact in selling the attention of their clients to the attractive prices at which the bonds of steel companies are now selling. This is particularly true with regard to the issue of Jones & Laughlin first mortgage 5 per cent. thirty-year sinking fund bonds, now being offered to investors at 102½ and interest.

TELLTALE BLOTTER STARTS WIFE'S SUIT

DETROIT, June 27.—A blotter carelessly left on a desk furnished the starting point for a suit for $120,000 which Mrs. Charles Wanner has brought against Mrs. Luella Clemens and her daughter Madeline for the alienation of the affections of the plaintiff's husband. Mrs. Wanner says that suspicions were first roused upon discovering a letter in a mirror frame. The letter was hastily blotted and concealed when she appeared. Upon looking at the room she saw ink marks left upon the blotter and hold it to a mirror, when she read the words "My own dear Lamb" and the girl's name.

Will Reciprocity Frighten American Cows or Depress American Hens?

Mr. Taft told the country that the two great malignant forces at work to defeat Reciprocity were the Lumber Trust and the Wood Pulp-Pulp Wood Trust. Mr. Taft told the truth.

These trusts maintain a bureau of misinformation and scatter misleading statements wherever the mails will carry them. In picturing the bankrupt horrors of Reciprocity, these trusts—keeping their own persons carefully concealed, of course—speak grievously of the butter and egg industry, of the hard-working American cow and the underpaid American hen. The pauper Canadian cow, with its butter, and the pauper Canadian hen, with its eggs, will by dint of a Reciprocity free list destroy the American cow and the American hen. It is to shield the American cow, buckler the American hen against the slings and arrows of an individuous Reciprocity that the Lumber Trust and the Wood Pulp Trust have bureauwise taken the field. At least you would so judge from the reams of butter and egg literature which the bureau grinds out.

In nothing that it states does this trust-supported bureau feel bound by the truth. Sometimes it suppresses one fact, while proclaiming another, and in that way misleads by what it fails to tell. It recites that since Reciprocity was talked of the price of wheat has gone down. But it omits to mention that during that same period of Reciprocity discussion the price of barley has gone up. It does not touch upon the fact, as explaining the decline of wheat, that last year the world overproduced in the matter of that excellent cereal to the resounding tune of 30,000,000 bushels.

In considering wheat that trust bureau misleads by indirection. When it comes to butter and eggs, however, its mendacity is direct. The American cow is to be reduced to beggary by the Canadian cow, the American hen go down before the Canadian hen, and what places have known them are to know them no more forever.

Now, what is the truth, the Reciprocity truth as to both Canadian and American butter and eggs? It is unfortunate for a world's enlightenment, a world racked with apprehensions concerning the future of the American cow and hen, that while Canada's figures for last year are available, the only obtainable American statistics are of ten years ago. Doing the best we can, however, with what known facts are at hard, it should be noticed that IN 1900—ONE YEAR—THE SCALES TOLD OF 1,491,952,602 POUNDS AS MARKING THE BUTTER PRODUCTION OF THE ENTIRE UNITED STATES. Also, the butter output of the country has grown and not dwindled during the decade just passed.

LAST YEAR CANADA, MILKING HER UTMOST AND CHURNING HER BEST, PRODUCED BUT 44,000,000 POUNDS OF BUTTER. Where Canada made a yellow pound of butter the United States made thirty. While Canada counts her butter by millions, the United States counts hers by billions.

The whole of last year's export of Canadian butter was but 4,600,000 pounds. There are 16,800,000 breakfast tables spread daily in the United States. Had that entire Canadian exportation of 4,600,000 pounds been sent to us it wouldn't have sufficed to spread one morning's bread on those 16,800,000 breakfast tables.

Had the entire butter production of Canada—44,000,000 pounds—been consigned to us, each of our 92,000,000 of people might have had nearly half a pound. If it had been tallow instead of butter, there wouldn't have been enough of it to grease Uncle Sam's boots.

As to eggs and the threatened American hen, over whose unconscious top-knot that trust-sustained bureau aforesaid would have us believe Reciprocity—hair-hung and breeze-shaken—is impending like a sword of Damocles, the threat of Reciprocity is as hard to discern.

Ten years ago THE AMERICAN HEN LAID 1,293,662,433 DOZEN OF EGGS. To-day the American hen, unclouded of an approaching Reciprocity, is laying more eggs than ever. THE CANADIAN HEN, MORE DELIBERATE, LESS DEVOTED TO HER ART, PERHAPS, LAYS FEWER THAN A YEARLY 2,000,000 DOZENS.

Where last year we exported 5,000,000 dozen eggs, Canadian egg exportation halted lamely at 160,650 dozen. And yet it marks a topmost dozen of Canada's whole egg export for a year!

That hardworking misinformation bureau, which the Lumber Trust and the Wood Pulp-Pulp Wood Trust—fighting Reciprocity—support, might as well, so far as the American cow and the American hen are concerned, fold its mendacious tent and silently steal away. The American cow and the American hen are ample for their own protection against all of the free trade in butter and eggs with Canada that Reciprocity can inaugurate.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

RECOGNITION OF PORTUGAL

Editor AMERICAN:

At last the government of the United States "recognizes" Portugal. Better late than never! Theodore Stanton, a true friend of liberty, an American living in Paris, has just written a criticism of our government's tardy action. He says this about the great young republic's "unpardonable slowness" in giving brave Portugal the democratic hand of fellowship:

"I spent a week in Lisbon last March, saw members of the provisional government, talked with the republican 'man in the street' and had noted for months, with deep indignation, the continuous and virulent campaign which the press of all Europe, not excluding the republican papers of Paris, had been carrying on against the brave little band of men who were risking their very lives in defence of the broad, generous ideas of republicanism. Nor do I find much comfort in the eleventh-hour action of our State Department, couched as the recognition is in the coldest and most formal language. The text of this diplomatic document could have been penned by the Czar himself. Contrast this tardiness and this chilliness with the promptness and warmth of President Grant, Secretary Fish and Minister Washburne in the autumn of 1870 when France declared for the republic.

"This is the way things should have gone in the autumn of 1910; or at least, after waiting more than eight months, we should have done much better than we did last Monday. For myself, I am utterly ashamed of the way in which the little Portuguese republic has been treated by what we proudly call the Great Republic of the West."

DANGER OF FIREWORKS

Editor AMERICAN:

The danger of the blank cartridge has been well advertised. There are other forms of explosives almost as dangerous. A rocket in the hands of a child endangers the comfort of everybody within range.

Many boys and girls do not know enough about setting off rockets to be permitted to handle them. Children often point them horizontally instead of straight up in the air. Consequently the fiery ball shoots across the street with every opportunity of hitting passersby or of entering an open window and starting a blaze in curtains, rugs, bedding or other inflammable stuff.

Even when discharged properly, many rockets fail to explode and fall like glowing coals capable of setting fire to any combustible material they may light upon.

The sale or gift of the class of fireworks to minors should be prohibited. The discharge of rockets by children should not be permitted by parents or police. Coupled with the crusade against the blank cartridge pistol should be a finish fight against the use of the rocket and all other dangerous explosives by minors.

The Case of the Bather Who Disappeared

A BATHER HAS MYSTERIOUSLY DISAPPEARED FROM ONE OF MY BATHHOUSES!
SOUNDS INTERESTING. COME, WATSO, WE WILL INVESTIGATE!
I GAVE HIM A KEY FOR THIS BATHHOUSE AND HE HAS NOT BEEN SEEN SINCE ENTERING IT!
I PRESUME THESE ARE HIS CLOTHES. HIS NAME IS SEWN IN — IT'S TIGHTWAD
EVIDENTLY HE IS DROWNED.
BUT I STOOD HERE THE LAST 4 OR 5 HOURS, AND I'M CERTAIN HE DID NOT COME OUT!
THERE ARE NO BOARDS LOOSE IN THE ROOF — HE DID NOT LEAVE THIS WAY!
ASTOUNDING.
BUT THIS GRATING IN THE FLOOR HAS BEEN RECENTLY RAISED!
MARVELOUS!
THIS WAY, WATSO,— WE SHALL FIND OUR MAN HERE!
JUST LIKE HIM!
WELL, MR. TIGHTWADDO, WILL YOU KINDLY EXPLAIN YOUR PRESENCE HERE?
A PENNY FELL OUT OF MY POCKET AND WENT THROUGH THE FLOORING. I'VE BEEN SEARCHING FOR IT ALL AFTERNOON!

A Money Shark Bill That Will Prevent Crime Should Be Passed at Once

Any Attempt in the Legislature to Sidetrack It or Emasculate It Will POINT THE FINGER OF SUSPICION at Its Opponents —the Business Interests of Boston Demand the Law.

The Committee on Banks and Banking is preparing a bill for the Legislature that has for its object the stopping of GRAFT and EXTORTION by the money sharks of Boston.

The exact provisions of the bill that will result from the deliberations of the committee will be considered later. The important thing is that SOME REMEDIAL LEGISLATION MUST BE PASSED at this session of the Legislature.

The feeling of the business people of Boston demands that a stop should be put to the shameful robbery of unfortunate men and women who are driven to money lenders in their troubles, only to find themselves at the mercy of heartless human leeches who hang on as long as there is any life left.

The Boston Chamber of Commerce, which is doing its utmost for the commercial welfare of this city, has been active in support of a bill that would do away with the CRUEL ABUSE of the money lending business as conducted by what have been justly termed MONEY SHARKS.

Nearly all of the large employers of labor have had unfortunate experiences with the pitiless money lenders. Instead of being a blessing to the poor people, as they claim, they have proven a curse in many instances.

Stories of individual cases were related to the Committee on Banks and Banking of the greed of the money sharks that were almost beyond belief. Once a man became a patron of a concern it was next to impossible for him to get out of its clutches.

The money sharks of Boston have left a trail of suffering in their wake that is appalling. The matter is now SQUARELY UP TO THE LEGISLATURE and the people will look to them to do their duty.

There are a good many important bills before the Legislature that call for attention before the body finishes its labors for the session. One of the old tricks of the obstructionists is to DELAY action so that in the RUSH AND CONFUSION at the finish, legislation that would be unpleasant for the interests may be conveniently LOST IN THE SHUFFLE.

The bill against the money sharks is a bill against a crime that takes food from the mouths of children and fills graves with suicides. The people will not listen to ANY EXCUSES for a failure to act favorably on this bill.

Any adroit attempt to sidetrack legislation against the money sharks by amendments and substitutes will at once attract the finger of suspicion.

The people will be pretty certain to recall, if an attempt is made to interfere with effective anti-money shark legislation, that the stock in trade of those who oppose such legislation is MONEY. They LEND it, usually, but sometimes when it is to their own interests, they GIVE IT AWAY.

The people of Boston and of the entire State demand that the anti-money shark bill shall be made strong enough to PREVENT CRIME and then PASSED.

Poverty Laughs

By KENNETT HARRIS

Copyright, 1911, by the National News Association.

Poverty laughs!
Laughs and is glad, joyful to be merely living.
To draw labored breath
Of poisonous reek into lungs that are riddled and rotten.
To eat—what she can, when she may.
To drink, to forget.

* * *

Poverty laughs.
Whoever saw her sit silent and sad-eyed and brooding?
She laughs at gnunt famine, at cold,
At the pest in her courts and her alleys.
Death comes, and she laughs,
For the blood in her veins is still running,
And her limbs move at will,
So the causeway resounds to her laughter.

* * *

Grim poverty?
Hear her make merry!
Out from her haunts shrills the vibrant and jubilant fiddle.
And fast throbs the rhythmic guitar.
Lo! at the corner a crowd,
For, with shoe soles worn through to the quick flesh above,
Poverty dances,
Dances and laughs to the lilt and the ripple and run
Of the cracked street piano.

* * *

"Come, Poverty,
Out of the shuddering gloom, from the shivering cold
To our light and our warmth!"
So, laughing goes Poverty,
And smile answers smile where she goes,
And help swiftly runs to the call for it,
And tears fall with pity where Grief is the neighbor, and Mourning,
And with all, she is laughing,
Toiling and laughing,
Struggling and laughing,
Fighting and laughing,
Laughing and trusting in God, who hath given her laughter,
To grant her Deliverance.
